Republican Dulles To Advise Acheson On Foreign Policies

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON — (AP)—Secretary of State Acheson and his new Republican adviser, John Foster Dulles, will meet soon to decide on the specific foreign policy problems Dulles will tackle.

This was disclosed by Acheson last night in a statement which also announced that Ambassador at Large Philip C. Jessup will lead an advance party to Europe for the diplomatic conferences to be held in London next month.

These conferences will bring together (1) Acheson, British Foreign Minister Bevin and French Foreign Minister Schuman for talks on the cold war strategy of the major western powers and (2) the foreign ministers of the 12 North Atlantic treaty nations for an effort to broaden the practical aims of their alliance.

State department officials expressed confidence today that as a result of the appointment of Dulles as Republican consultant to Acheson, the American secretary will go into the London meetings in a much stronger position that seemed likely a few weeks ago. This will be due, they said, to what they called the new evidence of a determination by leaders of the Truman administration and foreign policy leaders of the Republican party to run this country's foreign policy on a bipartisan basis.

One of the underlying fears of America's cold war allies has always been the domestic political rifts or party differences over major foreign questions might produce some sudden twist in U. S. policy and leave other nations out on a limb.

The Dulles appointment encouraged the Republican senate group which Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) has led. For example, Senator Ives (R-NY) said he hopes this and other appointments will mark a phase in which Democrats and Republicans join to eliminate politics from foreign affairs.

However, those Republicans which have been most critical of the Truman foreign policy and see it as a political issue did not appear impressed. Senator Watkins (R-Utah) said that if the President "thinks he is pleasing all the Republicans by picking Dulles, he is mistaken."

DULLES

Jury Convicts 'Mercy Killer'

ALLENTOWN, Pa.—(AP)—Harold Mohr was found guilty today of voluntary manslaughter in the mercy-killing of his cancer-wracked brother.

The jury of eight men and four women recommended mercy. Judge James F. Henninger said yesterday such a recommendation is not mandatory on the court. Maximum term for voluntary manslaughter is 12 years in prison.

Mohr stood to hear the sentence with no visible display of emotion. He stared, dully, at the floor.

The verdict was returned at 9:55 a. m., Eastern Standard Time, an hour and 25 minutes after the jurors resumed deliberations. Five hours of study yesterday failed to bring forth a verdict.

The jurors had a choice of four verdicts: first or second degree murder, voluntary manslaughter or acquittal.

Chopper Gets Jail

DETROIT — (AP) — Recorder's Judge Paul E. Krause says woodchopping is a fine way to work off steam, but not when the wood is the living room furniture. So he placed Wennant Morry, 29, on a year's probation. Morry admitted he had been drinking when he took the axe to his furniture. His wife, Marie, complained.

Kalamazoo Men Killed In Plane

PAW PAW, Mich. — (AP)—Two Kalamazoo men were killed when their light plane stalled and crashed near here yesterday as the pilot's mother watched.

State Police identified the victims as Richard Hybels, 35, the pilot, and John De Vries, 32, a passenger. The crash occurred on the Martin Picinich farm, a mile southeast of Paw Paw.

Officers said the plane, a two-place Cessna, was circling the Picinich farm house, where Hybels' mother was visiting. She was out front signalling the fliers, they said.

The plane was flying low so the occupants could talk with her. But as it banked going away, it stalled and crashed in a cornfield.

The motor was thrown clear, but the fuselage was badly smashed.

Fire On 23rd Floor Damages 60-Story Woolworth Building

NEW YORK — (AP)—Fire swept part of the 23rd floor of the Woolworth building early today, and flames from the windows could be seen for miles.

Firemen carried hoselines in elevators to the 23rd floor and rigged them to standpipes. Two pipes burst, and heavy water damage was caused in the 60 story skyscraper.

Two workmen were overcome by smoke, and a fireman was injured slightly.

The fire was discovered shortly after 1 a. m. (EST) in the executive offices of the F. W. Woolworth company, owner of the building on lower Broadway.

The northwest portion of the 23rd floor was gutted before the fire was under control at 2:30 a. m. Dense smoke seeped into other floors. Origin of the blaze was not determined immediately.

About 100 employes fled from the 39-year-old building, once New York's highest structure and a mecca for sightseers for many years.

Air Force Veteran To Become Civilian Boss Of U. S. Army

WASHINGTON— (AP) —An Arkansas boy who has done well in this big capital city, Frank Pace, jr., is well on the way toward being the first Air Force veteran to become civilian boss of the Army.

Along with best wishes from Republicans and Democrats alike, he won the unanimous approval of the Senate Armed Services committee yesterday. Senate confirmation of President Truman's appointment of him to the secretaryship appeared certain next week.

Pace, 37, is now director of the budget bureau.

In World War II, Pace served in the Air Forces transport command for nearly four years, rising from Lieutenant to Major, and then came to Washington. The Air Force was part of the Army when he served.

Cutter Breaks Ice To Beaver Island

CHARLEVOIX — (AP) — The Coast Guard cutter Woodbine, out of Grand Haven, smashed through the ice Thursday to open the harbor at St. James on Beaver Island.

Sues For Phones

DETROIT — (AP)—Mrs. Mabel Johnson wants her telephones back. She is suing the Michigan Bell Telephone Co. and Detroit Police Commissioner George F. Boos for a restoration of service. Police ripped out the phones when they raided her home as a suspected handbook. Mrs. Johnson later was found innocent in recorder's court.

Slaying Linked To Racketeers In Kansas City

KANSAS CITY — (AP)—Police lacked tangible clues today in the slaying of political leader Charles Binaggio but the crime was linked with the underworld.

Binaggio, a former worker in Boss Tom Pendergast's once-powerful Democratic organization, was shot to death yesterday.

His strong-arm aide, ex-convict Charlie Gargotta, also was killed.

Binaggio, who broke with the Pendergast group after Boss Tom's death, had developed a strong following in Kansas City northside wards.

The crime brought repercussions in both the state and national capitals.

In Washington, Rep. Short (R-Mo.) declared Binaggio was killed because he was "in the way" in the Missouri senatorial primary.

The Congressman said Binaggio was backing a senatorial candidate opposed by President Truman and a faction of the Pendergast political organization.

The Kansas City Star said Binaggio "was murdered because he wanted to quit the ball game when his team—the shadowy national crime syndicate reaching from coast to coast—was losing and it was Binaggio's turn at bat."

The northside political chief and Gargotta had appeared recently before a federal grand jury investigation underworld activities.

Straits Still Closed By Ice

CLEVELAND — (AP) — The Mackinac Straits are still clogged with ice, the Coast Guard reports.

Capt. James A. Hirshfield, ninth district Coast Guard commander, gave a report yesterday on conditions in the passage between Lake Michigan and Lake Huron.

He told the ice committee of the Lake Carriers association that it took the Coast Guard icebreaker Mackinac 10½ hours to make a westbound trip through the Straits and eight hours to return.

The association has notified fleet officials to report by Monday the number of vessels they would like to clear to and from Lake Michigan in the next 10 days.

Returning Prisoners Say Russian People Expect U. S. Attack

HOF, Germany—(AP)—Returning German war prisoners say that people in Russia expect an attack from the United States soon, perhaps even this year.

"In Russia everyone talks of war," declared Karl Kruegler, one of the hundreds of prisoners released recently from Soviet prison camps.

"They seem to expect attack by America to come this year. Many predicted it would come this April."

Another repatriated prisoner of war, Herbert Scheffrath, said "Communist propaganda has apparently succeeded in convincing the Russian population America wants war."

Hundreds of German prisoners, who had been held on war crimes charges, have been arriving from Siberian work camps in the last few days. German officials said they had been notified to expect 50,000 returnees in the next two months.

Grass Fire Fatal To Niles Man, 84

NILES, Mich—J. F. McLaughlin, 84, died today of burns suffered yesterday when his clothing caught fire while he was burning grass on his farm six miles north of here.

McLaughlin dragged himself to a phone in his home, but couldn't tell what was wrong because of shock. A party-line neighbor investigated and found him with third degree burns over much of his body.

Devout Pilgrims Pass Barb Wire Barricades In Good Friday March

JERUSALEM — (AP) — Thousands of Christian Pilgrims today filed past jagged reminders of recent war to observe the passion of the prince of peace on the route he took to his crucifixion.

Through barbed wire entanglements, past dragon-tooth tank traps and ancient walls scarred by hundreds of battles, Pilgrims make their Good Friday march to the sacred Via Dolorosa in the old city which is now held by the Arabs of the Kingdom of Hashemite Jordan.

Thousands of Pilgrims have come from all parts of the world. Some entered the ancient city from New Jerusalem, held by the Jews as part of their new state of Israel, and some came from Arab-held Palestine and Jordan.

Roman Catholics, eastern orthodox followers and Protestants alike celebrate Holy Week at the same time this year.

Many of the Pilgrims, unable to find accommodations inside the noisy, crowded old city, spent the night in Bethlehem, at Jericho on the Dead Sea and in villages in the Judean hills.

Roman Catholics are to celebrate the mass of the pre-sanctified in the chapel of Calvary, at the site where Jesus Christ is said to have been nailed to the cross.

A burial procession this evening will wind through the dark and narrow streets of the Via Dolorosa, which now teems with Arab shops and a life almost unchanged through the centuries.

The 14 original "stations of the cross" are on this stone-walled street. Marked by shrines are the spots, as described in the new testament, where Jesus paused on his way to Calvary and where he later was buried before the resurrection.

The procession ends at the church of the Holy Sepulchre, in the underground depths of which is Christ's tomb. The church, near the northern wall of the old city, has been fully repaired following last winter's fire which damaged its cupola.

Besides their own services in the old city, Protestants have conducted joint Holy Week services in St. Andrew's church in the new city. From the churchyard worshippers can see the old city and the olive-treed valley of Gethsemane to the east.

Easter morning sunrise services are to be held by the Protestants in St. Andrew's churchyard. The services will be broadcast in English by shortwave to Europe, the United States and Canada.

McCarthy Doubts FBI Report That Lattimore Is No Red Spy

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Senator Tydings' assertion that FBI records fully clear Owen Lattimore of "Communist spy" charges left Senator McCarthy completely dissatisfied today.

Tydings, Maryland Democrat, heads the Senate committee investigating the contentions of McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican, that Lattimore is Russia's top espionage agent in the United States.

Lattimore, an American authority on Far Eastern affairs, yesterday spent more than three hours in the witness chair blasting at McCarthy's accusations. His sworn testimony boiled down to saying McCarthy had uttered "base and contemptible lies."

Then Lattimore leaned back and faced Tydings across the table. And Tydings told him:

"I think as chairman of this committee I owe it to you and to the country to tell you that four of the five members of the committee, in the presence of J. Edgar Hoover, head of the FBI, had a complete summary of your files made available to them.

"Mr. Hoover himself prepared these data. It was quite lengthy and at the conclusion of the reading of that summary, in great detail, it was the universal opinion of all the members of the committee present and all others in the room, of which there were two more, that there was nothing in that file to show that you were a Communist or ever had been a Communist, or that you ever were connected with any espionage information or charges.

"So that the FBI puts you completely, up to this moment at least, in the clear."

McCarthy, out of the hearing room at the time, later fired back to newsmen:

"Either Tydings hasn't seen the files, or he is lying. There is no other alternative."

Tydings had said the committee saw a summary of the FBI record on Lattimore—not the so-called "raw" file.

McCarthy retorted he does not know what Hoover gave the committee, "but I know what is in the files."

Tydings, commenting on McCarthy's remark about him, declared:

"I'll let my reputation for accuracy stand. It is significant that no member of the committee contradicted the statement when I made it in the presence of the committee."

Two Soldiers Held In Utah Kidnaping And Station Robbery

FILLMORE, Utah — (AP) — Two air force enlisted men, one from Detroit, were under arrest here for the robbery and kidnaping of a filling station attendant.

Sheriff Culbert Bobison said the two were captured yesterday in the rest room of an elementary school. The school children had to be dismissed before the capture could be made, but no shots were fired.

He identified the men as John H. Pritchard, 19, Detroit, and Ronald E. Ford, 23, of Pismo Beach, Calif. Both are stationed at Warren air force base, Cheyenne, Wyo.

The sheriff said the two admitted they had robbed a service station operator in Nephi and forced him to accompany them seven miles south of Nephi, where they forced him out.

Truman Finds It Cold Outside

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

KEY WEST, Fla. — (AP)—President Truman hoped for a break in the weather today in order to get in at least three more vacation swims.

It was cold outside yesterday. After a shivering walk to the beach, he gave his head an extra shake and walked back to the winter White House. The temperature was 57 degrees at noon.

Some of the presidential staff wore topcoats last night.

Everything is in readiness for Mr. Truman's flight back to Washington Monday with his daughter, Margaret. Mrs. Truman is going home today, driving to Miami and taking a train from there.

The Trumans are getting ready for a reception for President Gabriel Gonzales Videla of Chile, whom they will entertain with a "white tie" dinner at the Hotel Carlton in Washington Wednesday night.

The Chilean leader will occupy winter White House here Tuesday night when he flies to Florida in the White House plane, the "Independence." Mr. Truman will go to Washington in the so-called "Dew Drops," a MATS constellation.

Watchman Stabbed In Washington Store; Bound Bodies Found

WASHINGTON, — (AP) — The bound bodies of two nightwatchmen were found early today in one of Washington's biggest department stores (Lansburgh & Brothers). Police said both had been stabbed to death.

They were identified as John C. Carpenter, 45, and Oliver R. Hess, 56.

Police said Carpenter's body was in a first floor washroom. Hess, bound and stabbed in the back, was lying on a blood-stained carpet on the fifth floor. Police said they found a large butcher knife believed to be the murder weapon.

Mail Boxes Robbed By German Refugee

DETROIT—(AP)—A German refugee, who allegedly cashed 75 checks he stole from mail boxes, was held today by Hamtramck police.

Manfred Zimmerman, 29, was arrested yesterday as he fled a bar after cashing an income tax refund check for $23.20.

Detectives said he had 150 identification cards on his person. They said he admitted using them to cash the stolen checks.

Reno Gambler Cheats Death

RENO, Nev. — (AP) — Lincoln Fitzgerald, former Detroit gambler shot from ambush here last November, left the hospital here Thursday.

His doctors said that Fitzgerald, 57, is "doing fine, has shown a lot of improvement in the last month and now walks with a little help."

Four doctors who operated on him after he was felled with a sawed-off shotgun blast last Nov. 18 gave him little chance to live. Even if he did, they said, a spinal injury might paralyze him for life.

It is still too early to determine if there was permanent damage done by the blast, doctors say now, but "he is doing better than we expected."

The shooting has never been solved. There have been no open indications of a continuing investigation by police in recent months.

Fitzgerald, who formerly operated a night club in Mt. Clemens, Mich., came here about three years ago.

Escaped Michigan Convict Nabbed For Texas Paint Theft

DALLAS,—(AP)—A prisoner who walked away from Southern Michigan prison 24 years ago was held today by Dallas police as a suspect in the theft of $300 worth of paint.

Frank Theodore Green, 42, admitted his identity Thursday after it had been established through fingerprints and a picture in the police identification bureau. Michigan authorities were notified.

Green told officers that he had walked away from the prison paint shop in 1924, four months after he started a two and one-half to five-year sentence for breaking and entering.

Tax Increase On Employers To Carry Load

Lawmakers See New Grab For Power

By FRANCIS M. LE MAY

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Truman got a mixed and uncertain reception on capitol hill today for his new proposal to (1) blanket 6,000,000 more workers under employment insurance and (2) pay bigger benefits to the jobless for a longer time.

Mr. Truman cited an average of nearly 4,500,000 unemployed this year and said prompt action is urgent.

Leaders Not Enthused

Democratic leaders were not enthusiastic at the prospect of putting the plan through Congress this year, however, and some Republicans signalled that they are ready to do battle against it.

In a special message to Congress from Key West, Fla., the president asked:

1. A $30-a-week nationwide minimum in jobless pay, plus additional money for dependents, with these payments forthcoming for each unemployed person, if needed, for 26 weeks. The various states now determine the size and duration of payments. Benefits vary by states from $15 to $27, and duration of benefits runs from 12 weeks in some states to 26 in others.

2. That the taxes on employers be increased to carry the enlarged program. The employer now pays the tax on the first $3,000 of an individual worker's pay. Mr. Truman proposes to tax the employer on the first $4,800 instead. The tax ranges up to 3 per cent.

Republicans Blast Plan

The 6,000,000 new workers blanketed under the program, if it is aproved, would bring the total of covered workers to about 36,000,000.

The newly insured would be employes of firms with fewer than eight workers, also civilian employes of the federal government, about 500,000 persons who work on a commission basis, and 200,000 in industrial work connected with agriculture—all now exempt.

Mr. Truman also asked for benefits for workers who move from state to state, strengthening of the federal and state laws concerning fraud and disqualifications, and improvements in financing arrangements including "re-insurance grants" to states when their jobless reserve funds approach exhaustion.

Republicans began blasting the program as soon as it hit capitol hill.

Rep. Arends (R-Ill) said: "This is an admission by the president that hard times and serious unemployment are in the offing as the result of the Truman program."

Said Rep. Brown (R-Ohio): "Another grab for power! This is strictly a CIO program."

Committee Too Busy

House Democratic leaders McCormack, of Massachusetts, immediately introduced a bill embodying the president's suggestions, and some Democrats gave statements agreeing with the presi-

Union Leaders Favor Merger

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A warm reception by John L. Lewis strengthened prospects today of merging the nation's big labor unions into a single, powerful federation.

Lewis yesterday accepted CIO President Philip Murray's plan to establish a joint committee for cooperation on legislative, political and economic problems.

The same committee, according to Murray's plan, would work to achieve an actual merger of all labor unions.

An aswer to Murray's proposal was awaited from the AFL, the Railroad Labor Unions and the Independent Machinists Union, also invited to join.

AFL President William Green greeted the idea cordially and said he planned to discuss it with Murray. A reply was promised today from Al Hayes, president of the Machinists Union. The rail unions were considering their replies.

Together, the unions claim about 16,000,000 members.

Record Cold Spell Brings Shivering To Southeast Florida

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—Southeast Florida shivered today in a near-record cold spell.

Yesterday's low of 57 was followed by a high of only 63 and the weather bureau said it would reach a low of 45 to 50 early today in the Miami area.

At Key West the thermometer registered 57 degrees at noon and President Truman found it too chilly for his customary dip at his vacation retreat.

Coldest April 6 in Miami history was 47 in 1944. The weather bureau said April 7 had a previous low of 48 in 1931.

Vandenberg To Leave Georgetown Hospital

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) was back in a Georgetown hospital today for what aides said was a continuation of diagnostic work started last month.

The Michigan senator has been unable to attend Capitol Hill sessions since Feb. 2. He underwent a lung operation at University hospital in Ann Arbor last Fall.

Aides said he expects to leave the Georgetown hospital later this week.

Government Borrows Billion Next Week

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The government, expecting to overspend its income by more than $9,000,000,000 in the next 15 months, will start borrowing new money next week to make ends meet.

That will add considerably to the government's debts, which already total nearly $256,000,000,000.

The first step in the new borrowing program, as announced by Secretary of the Treasury Snyder last night, will take this form:

The treasury owes about $900,000,000 in 91-day bills falling due April 13. It will sell $1,000,000,000 in new 91 day bills that day to pay off the due debt and leave it $100,000,000 extra cash.

Except in scale, the transaction will be the same as that of a man who has a $900 note falling due at the bank next Thursday and "takes care of it" by giving a new note for $1,000.

The treasury will have a chance to pick up an extra $100,000,000 on each of the two succeeding weeks by identical transactions, for it has $900,000,000 issues of 91-day bills also falling due April 20 and 27.

Next week will mark the first time in seven months that the treasury has sought to borrow extra funds in the public money market, made up mostly of banks.

Norman Gravelle Gets Promotion

Cpl. Norman J. Gravelle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Gravelle of 1515 North 3rd avenue, was recently promoted to the grade of corporal at Fort Lewis, Wash., where he is stationed with the 13th Ordnance artillery and vehicle park company.

Corporal Gravelle has chosen the Army as a career, and is now in his sixth year of service, including 15 months with the army of occupation in Germany.

In his present assignment Corporal Gravelle is a member of a team assisting the Washington state highway patrol in the inspection of vehicles, and was recently commended for the excellent work of this team.

Council Has Meeting Here

Names Wickman To Recreation Board

Councilman Sam Wickman was reappointed to serve on the city recreation board at a regular meeting last night of the Escanaba city council.

The council passed a resolution, on recommendation of the city manager, opposing any attempt by state legislators to divert liquor tax and intangible tax monies from Michigan cities.

Copies of the resolution, which declares the tax money is needed for liquor law enforcement and meeting general city obligations, have been forwarded to Governor Williams, State Senator William A. Ellsworth and Einar Erlandsen representative. Escanaba would lose about $42,000 if two proposed bills were passed by the state legislature. Copies of the resolution also will be sent to other Upper Michigan cities.

Request Loan

A request from the C & S Construction company for extension of their contract for removal of piling and two cribs at the government ore dock site was approved by the council. The council included in the contract a stipulation that no part of the company's performance bond be returned until the work is satisfactorily completed, and another requiring the company to place two buoys at the site. The work should be completed by July 1, the city manager reported.

The council approved a request for a club liquor license from the Escanaba Teamsters' Union, which recently purchased the Dr. A. S. Kitchen home on Sheridan road.

The council also received reports from the city board of canvassers on returns in the election on Monday.

Butterfly In Snow Promise Of Spring

One butterfly does not make it Springtime, as that butterfly probably knows today.

Charles Carlson of near Narenta yesterday afternoon observed a butterfly fluttering in a bush outside the window. At that time the sun was shining and the weather warmer than for several weeks.

Today the ground is covered with an additional three to four-inch coating of snow and there is no sign of the butterfly.

At simulated altitudes of 18,000 feet, without the aid of oxygen, men fail at simple problems although they believe they are solving them correctly.

A. N. Wilson Is Elected Head Of Knights Templar

A. N. Wilson was elected eminent commander of Escanaba Commandery No. 47, Knights Templar at the annual business meeting held last night at the Masonic Temple.

Other officers for the year are: Roy E. Anderson, Iron Mountain, generalissimo; Henry G. Olson, captain general; C. R. Henderson, captain general emeritus; Theodore L. Farrow, Bark River, senior warden; Hubert M. Allen, junior warden; Arthur E. Nelson, prelate; R. W. Haddock, prelate emeritus; William Warmington, treasurer; Charles Hammar, recorder; Howard E. Plucker, standard bearer; John S. Landon, sword bearer; Edward V. Jackson, Manistique, warder; Percy Owen, sentinel; C. R. Henderson, trustee.

Iron Mountain Commandry No. 57 has invited Escanaba Commandery to attend Easter services with them at the Masonic Temple in Iron Mountain at 3:30 EST. The invitation includes both Commandery members and their ladies. This will be the regular Easter service for the Commandery and a good representation from Escanaba is desired. Haber To Speak Here On Monday

"Social Security" Will Be Topic

William Haber, professor of economics at the University of Michigan since 1936, will be the lecturer on the "Highlights of Business and Economics" series at the junior high school at 7:45 Monday evening, April 10. His topic will be: "Social Security."

Professor Haber was born March 6, 1899 in Harlan, Roumania. Upon graduation from Milwaukee High School (Wis.) in 1919, he entered the University of Wisconsin, receiving the degree of master of arts in 1925 and doctor of philosophy in 1927.

Before coming to the University of Michigan, he taught economics at Michigan State College and the University of Wisconsin.

He has been employed in various administrative and advisory capacities with U. S. Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion, U. S. War Manpower Commission, U. S. Bureau of the Budget, Works Progress Administration, Social Security Board, advisor to General Lucius D. Clay, commander in chief of the European theater, and others.

Among academic honors received by Dr. Haber are the John Lendrum Mitchell Gold Medal "for best thesis in industrial relations" from the University of Wisconsin, and a Werthem Fellowship for Research in Industrial Relations from Harvard University. He also has served as chairman of the Governor's Social Security Study Commission and the Michigan Unemployment Compensation Commission and as president of the Michigan Rural Rehabilitation Corporation.

Dr. Haber is a member of several professional and learned societies. Among them are the American Economic Association, American Associations for Labor Legislation, Society for Public Administration, and American Public Welfare Association.

Fine Licensee For Selling To Minors

The Michigan liquor control commission today reported that it has ordered Raymond Feathers of the Westside tavern, 322 Stephenson avenue, Escanaba, to pay a $150 fine for selling intoxicating beverages to a minor.

Failure to pay the fine will bring a suspension of license for 30 days. The date of the violation was Nov. 1, 1949, and no previous violations are recorded against the licensee, the commission reported.

Frank Grsich, 71 Dies Following Lengthy Illness

Frank Grsich, 71, died at 11:45 last night at his home, 1620 North 16th street. He had been in poor health for the past several years.

He was born in Zakanja Ribmik, Jugo Slavia, February 24, 1879, and came to the United States to make his home in this community in 1905. He was employed as a watchman for the I. Stephenson Co. until he retired because of ill health. He was a member of St. Thomas the Apostle church, and the Croatian Catholic lodge No. 39.

Surviving are his wife, two sons, Frank of Chicago and Lt. Nicholas Grsich of Fort Knox, Ky.; three daughters, Mrs. George Mihelic of Wells and Mrs. Frank Ozimac and Mrs. Carl Gustafson, Escanaba; 28 grandchildren and one brother, Joseph of Cleveland, Ohio.

The body was taken to the Boyce funeral home. Arrangements for the services have not been completed.

Farmers Told How Surplus Potatoes Fed To Livestock

Michigan State College animal husbandrymen are getting many inquiries regarding the value of cull or surplus potatoes in feeding of livestock. They report limited amounts of potatoes may be used as a low cost livestock feed, but caution that the entire ration cannot be made up of potatoes without feeding problems developing.

Potatoes are equal to corn silage for cattle feeding and are about one-third the value of good alfalfa hay, W. L. Finley, beef extension specialist reports. Due to high moisture content, potatoes should be used to replace only a part of the grain ration for steers being fattened. For brood cows, potatoes may be fed along with roughage but not in the excess of 40 pounds for each large animal.

For swine, Harry Moxley, swine specialist of the MSC extension service, says potatoes should be steamed or cooked and never fed raw. Not more than one-half the grain ration should be replaced by cooked potatoes, Moxley suggests. From two to four pounds of potatoes may replace one pound of grain and ample protein from other sources must be available.

Graydon Blank, extension specialist in sheep production, reminds that good quality alfalfa hay or other feed must be fed with potatoes to sheep. For wintering pregnant ewes, potatoes may be fed up to about 2½ pounds daily for each animal. Because of mineral deficiencies, feeding in larger amounts could result in weak lambs. Satisfactory results have been reported in fattening lambs on a combination of legume hay, protein supplements, hay and potatoes, Blank reports.

Feeding in too large quantities causes scours in sheep and beef cattle, the specialists report.

Want Softball Stadium Here

Association Asks City For $6,000

A loan of $6,000 to finance construction of a fieldhouse and stadium at the lighted softball field here was requested last night by the Escanaba Softball association, at the regular city council meeting.

William Doucette appeared before the council to outline plans and request the loan from the city. The association, Doucette said, would repay the loan within a period of 10 years.

The council referred the request to the city manager for study and recommendation.

Plans for the stadium and fieldhouse have been prepared by Robert Clayton, city forester, it was reported at the meeting last night. Clayton drew the plans on recommendation of George Grenholm, city recreation director.

Established 18 Years

Councilmen discussed in detail arrangements between the city recreation department and the softball association on use of the city-owned field.

George Grenholm, city recreation director, recommended that the council act favorably on the proposal for a fieldhouse and stadium. Grenholm declared present accommodations at the field were "pitifully poor."

The recreation director commended the association for its cooperation with the recreation department and noted that the field is used by the city for junior recreation activities, without cost to the recreation department.

"Softball has been established here for the last 18 years. Last summer a total of 48,714 persons were at the field," Doucette told the council. He emphatically pointed out the association was not "asking for something for nothing, and fully intended to repay the loan."

Development Program

Councilman Nevin Reyonlds asked Grenholm if the softball activity should be an integral part of the recreation department, and Grenholm replied affirmatively. Grenholm said the recreation department does not have sufficient funds to finance the softball fieldhouse and stadium.

"Escanaba is many years behind in development of recreation areas," Grenholm said. He reported that the department hopes to complete the Webster playground improvement this spring, and that a new ball field will be made beyond the veterans housing project. The department, he said, also has planned a five year development program for Royce park.

"Development of recreation areas here would be stymied," Grenholm said, "if money for the softball stadium were taken from the department."

The city manager has been asked to study the plans and confer with the recreation director and the softball association on the project. He will submit a report to the council at a later meeting.

John Novack appeared before the council last night to state he felt the council should not have accepted the report by the city manager and the city engineer at the meeting on March 16. Novack had previously appeared before the council charging "corruption and use of city equipment and labor for personal gain."

The report, Novack said, was based either on a "poor investigation or was a deliberate evasion of facts". Novack also stated that he felt the city engineer had attempted to "make a hero of himself at the taxpayers' expense" and that the city manager was not aware of "what was going on." The complainant also pointed out that several privileges had been taken from city employes since he (Novack) had appeared before the council.

Novack met with the council and city manager after the regular meeting and presented information on instances where he felt city employes were given too much privilege. Novack questioned buying at a discount by city employes and their working on private jobs. "It is in competition with workers in private trade and businessmen in Escanaba," Novack said.

The city manager will investigate complaints made last night by Novack and make reports at a later meeting.

Grow Will Head C-C Secretaries

Conference Is Held At Iron Mountain

Hugh Grow, secretary of the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce, was elected president of the newly-organized Upper Peninsula commercial secretaries association at Iron Mountain Thursday.

Ray Laufenberg of Menominee was named vice president, and Walter Schrader, Iron Mountain, secretary-treasurer.

Secretaries of chambers of commerce and civic groups from various Upper Peninsula communities attended the Iron Mountain meeting.

Laufenberg was general chairman.

The need for readjustment of freight rates to encourage Upper Peninsula industrial expansion was presented by R. J. Steinke and A. G. Wolfe, executives of the Ford Motor company of Iron Mountain. Gerald Warrener, secretary of the Ontonagon Chamber of Commerce, again presented his plan for the formation of Peninsula Industries, Inc., to attract new factories and assist manufacturers with their engineering and marketing problems.

Aarne R. Ervast, Hancock, Upper Peninsula representative of the Michigan Department of Economic Development, described how his agency assisted in locating the new Parke-Davis plant in Holland and a glass works in Albion. He told of some prospects for new industries in the U. P.

George Bishop, secretary-manager of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, discussed prospects for the 1950 tourist season, and urged chambers of commerce to send representatives to the Outdoor Writers association convention in Escanaba. Contacts with these writers could prove valuable in getting publicity for the Upper Peninsula, he said.

L. D. Tucker, editor of the Iron Mountain News, spoke on the value of cooperation between newspapers and chambers of commerce in the dissemination of community news. W. J. Cochran, Iron Mountain, commissioner of the Inter-Peninsula Communications commission, gave a report on the progress of the campaign for the creation of the Mackinac States Bridge Authority. A bill will be introduced at the current session of the legislature, he said.

Garden

GARDEN—Wayne Farley and Paul Gauthier arrived here Wednesday from St. Norbert's high school in DePere, Wis., to spend the Easter recess with their parents.

Vernon Winter, student at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, came Friday to spend the spring vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Winter.

Mrs. Stanley Jacques took her daughter Barbara to Menominee Tuesday for periodic dental treatment and was accompanied by Mrs. Ray Ranguette.

Harry Greene commenced his duties as census taker of this township Saturday.

Percy Joque of Escanaba motored here Tuesday night to visit his father, Edward Joque, who had fallen on the ice near his home and injured a hip, when emptying garbage. Mrs. Joque is still confined in the St. Francis hospital and reported definitely improving following a relapse.

Driver Gets 30 Day Jail Sentence Here

Casimir (Charles) Milkiewicz, 65, of Escanaba Route One, was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail Thursday on a plea of guilty to driving an automobile while his driver's license had been revoked. He was arrested by state police.

His driver's license was revoked in 1947. A mandatory jail sentence is provided in such cases by the state motor vehicle regulations.

Prison Labor To Fight Pine Blister Rust

LANSING — (AP) — Michigan's prison labor program is soon to branch out into a new activity—the control of white pine blister rust, a fungus disease which kills the pines.

Corrections Commissioner Earnest C. Brooks reported today his department had entered into an agreement with the state agriculture department under which the first crew of eight men will work out of Marquette branch prison on the project.

This pilot crew will be housed in the prison honor camp going out every day in trucks to work on the protection of pines in the Marquette area.

The corrections department will supply food and guards while the agriculture department will supply transportation, tools and supervision.

The prisoners will remove currant and gooseberry bushes within a 900-foot radius of the stands of pine. The blister rust spores must live for a time on these bushes before they can infect the trees.

Brooks said that if the pilot crew works out, a similar crew may later be assigned to work on pine stands in the Kent - Montcalm county area from Ionia reformatory.

He added that every present conservation prison camp is near stands of pines which need attention and that eventually a crew of eight may be assigned from each camp to work on the eradication project.

S. J. Gilman, Brooks' assistant will be in Marquette April 17 to make arrangements for the first crew.

At the same time, he will confer with prison and conservation officials on the projected opening of the prison camp in the Taquamenon state park and the assigning of 20 men to it on April 23.

A crew of 12 men, who have been building the barracks all winter, will remain in the camp.

Bandits Who Beat Up Father Identified By Detroit Girl, 9

DETROIT—(AP)—Those are the men, sad-eyed, nine-year-old Jane Darwish said.

And cross-examination by two defense attorneys failed to shake her story.

Those two men, she maintained, were the two who came into her daddy's grocery store and hit him and hit him.

Her father, Yessef Darwish, 52, is now nearly blind from the beating inflicted by two bandits last Feb. 3.

He was unable to identify the two men on trial. His wife, Naffay, also was uncertain of identification.

But not Jane. She knew them.

So a recorder's court jury of four men and eight women Thursday found Grover Snedacar, 18, and Walter D. Baldwin, 22, guilty.

They will be sentenced by Judge Gerald W. Groat on April 17.

Electricians Seek Increase

City Employes Ask 12¢ An Hour Raise

Escanaba city electricians have submitted a request for a wage increase of 12c an hour in most classifications, it has been learned. The request will be presented to the city civil service commission Saturday.

In addition to a wage increase, the electricians have requested a 25% reduction in their utility bills, city-paid hospitalization insurance and three weeks paid vacation after 15 years of service. The present city policy provides for three weeks paid vacation after 20 years of service.

The request was submitted by the electricians union to A. V. Aronson, who as city manager is also personnel director of the civil service commission.

The electricians requested a rate of $1.75 per hour for line foreman, an increase of 17c from the present rate of $1.58. All other categories would be raised 12c an hour under the proposal. Journeymen electrician rates, requested by the union, are from $1.28 to $1.58 per hour, electric servicemen $1.48 and utility service $1.39.

The city officials are now preparing the budget for the next fiscal year.

Sen. Ellsworth Should Be Leader In Campaign For Straits Bridge

SENATOR WILLIAM A. ELLSWORTH of St. Ignace has informed newspapers in his district that he would like to hear from the folks at home—in the 30th senatorial district, that is—and we believe that he will get his wish, and plenty.

Sen. Ellsworth has blocked, at least temporarily, action on Governor Williams' proposal to create a Straits of Mackinac bridge authority with extensive powers. The bill presented by Gov. Williams is copied after the 1934 act that created the first Mackinac bridge authority. That act was repealed in 1947.

The people of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan are preponderantly in support of the Straits bridge project. As a senator representing a district that extends from St. Ignace to the City of Menominee, Senator Ellsworth should be among the leaders in the campaign for the proposed bridge. His constituents want the bridge and it is his duty to represent the majority viewpoint.

Perhaps Sen. Ellsworth is a supporter of the governor's bill. However, it is generally known that some business interests in St. Ignace are opposed to the bridge idea because it would bypass the St. Ignace business district. Sen. Ellsworth himself is the owner of a series of tourist cabins located in an area that would miss much of the west-bound traffic from the bridge site. As a compensatory factor, it would seem that increased traffic in the St. Ignace area, stimulated by the bridge, would help the tourist cabin business. A good percentage of the travelers would desire to travel on to Sault Ste. Marie to visit the locks.

Just to be sure that Sen. Ellsworth fully understands the viewpoint of his constituents on the Mackinac bridge project, we heartily recommend that the people in this district write to him and let him know their views. Correspondence should be addressed to Senator William A. Ellsworth, Michigan State Senate, State Capitol, Lansing.

Sen. Ellsworth also would like his constituents' views on increased gasoline taxes for highways, as well as proposed tax increases for general operating expenses of state government.

Conservation Officers Should Carry Arms

THE order by the state conservation department for the disarming of its officers is a rash move that is not justified by the supreme court decision that deprived conservation officers of police powers.

The carrying of sidearms by conservation officers for defensive purposes only developed in 1939 as the result of the murders of three officers. The brutal slayings showed conclusively that conservation officers required for their own safety the means to defend themselves against attack. That situation still exists, despite the state supreme court decision. The legislature can handle the problem created by the supreme court decision.

Even if it is necessary for conservation officers to apply as individuals for gun carrying permits, pending legislative clarification of their status, this should be done in preference to disarming the conservation officers.

By the very nature of his job, a conservation officer exposes himself to possible danger in making an arrest or in the investigation of game law violations. It is unfair and unwise to deprive the officers of the means to defend himself in the event that he is attacked. Such a policy logically would only further discourage conservation officers from vigorous enforcement of the conservation laws.

Home Rule For Capital Denied Voters

OF all the burdens saddled upon congress, as a city council for Washington seems the silliest. Long hours are devoted to details of municipal government that are admittedly tiresome to most of the lawmakers involved.

Actually, no one likes the arrangement. Washington's residents want to govern themselves just as do citizens everywhere else. Officials of the District of Columbia, who run the city under the thumb of congress, plead for more authority.

Both major parties went on record in their 1948 platforms as favoring home rule for the capital.

Despite all this, action on home rule legislation is stymied. Last year the senate passed a bill by Senator Kefauver, Tennessee Democrat, to give Washingtonians the right to vote for a city council and to provide for a reorganized District government. But the house district committee sat on the measure.

That's the situation today, except that a petition is being circulated among house members to discharge the committee from further study of the bill. The discharge petition, the only way a measure can be brought to the floor over the adverse vote of a committee, now lacks but 49 of the 218 signatures to become effective.

Why has the home rule proposal been blocked when so many appear to favor it?

The answer is simple. Between a fourth and a third of the capital's population is Negro. There is fear in certain quarters that to enfranchise Washington voters will mean to give this minority more than its proportionate strength at the polls.

Obviously there can be no defense of such a view point in this country. Forward-looking elements in the south have been slowly but surely winning the Negro his rightful status at the polls after decades of disfranchisement. And there the problem has of course been most acute.

Certainly Washington is the last place democratic America should wish to see barriers raised against use of the voting privilege. it may be pointed out that the capital is in a ticklish spot, on the borderline between North and South. But the possibilities for conflict are probably more explosive than in, let's say, Detroit or Chicago, where the growth of Negro minorities is pressing hard on a limited housing supply.

The fact is Washington is a capital first and a border city second. As the nation's capital, it must reflect in daily practice the country's loftiest ideals. How can a city symbolize democracy if it doesn't live it?

Forethought Pays Off In Lives Saved

SOME 1,700 engineers and field men from the capital stock fire insurance and casualty insurance companies are now engaged in a nation-wide inspection project to prevent hospital disasters. The program is under the direction of the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

As of March 1, about 1,360 hospitals had been inspected for fire and other hazards. All in all, nearly 9,000 hospitals will be surveyed before the program is completed. The primary idea is to eliminate hazards to life. However, the scope of these inspections goes beyond that. It is hoped that one of the most lasting results will be improvements in the training of hospital personnel and an increased consciousness of fire dangers.

The importance of this was demonstrated a short time ago when fire struck a Wisconsin hospital. The employes, luckily, had been trained in fire safety. While three of them fought the blaze, the remainder removed 100 mental patients from the building. Not a single patient was killed or injured, and the building was saved. The superintendent of this institution had instigated fire drills and training programs, and all the employes were alert to the danger. Forethought paid off. A fire which might have been disastrous was controlled with relatively small damage.

The American Hospital association is cooperating with the insurance industry in this splendid work. If every hospital follows the advice of the inspecting experts, the chance of disaster will be reduced to the minimum.

COAL MINERS

(Green Bay Press-Gazette)

The Tennessee plants of the Atomic Energy Commission want natural gas for fuel instead of coal although they have coal mines all around them. The commission says that the constant uncertainty about the delivery of coal endangers the continuity of its operations. The same rule applies with equal or greater force almost everywhere. The record of the last three years tells its own intense story. On the basis of heat content coal provided 50 per cent of the energy used in the United States in 1947, 46.5 per cent in 1948 and only 38.5 per cent in 1949. The railroads which used 108 million tons of coal in 1947 dropped to 70 millions by 1949. The desirability of Diesels over steam was a factor, of course, but 18 coal strikes in the last ten years have left a scar upon the industry that cannot be removed by the language of Mr. Lewis, however picturesque.

Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Most newspaper readers, even though disagreeing with Senator McCarthy, consider him sincere in his charges against the state department. But senators who sit alongside the likable young senator from Wisconsin have a somewhat different view, are beginning to classify him as another Huey Long.

PEARSON

Like the Louisiana Kingfish, Joe McCarthy has an engaging manner, great personal charm, tremendous energy and an insatiable desire for putting headlines ahead of public welfare. Also like Huey, McCarthy is getting the reputation of picking up almost any ball and running with it, providing it brings enough publicity. This, colleagues explain, was why he smeared the U. S. army for giving the death sentence to 12 SS men responsible for massacring 350 unarmed American prisoners of war at Malmedy during the Battle of the Bulge.

Malmedy was one of the most gruesome and ruthless murders of the war. The 350 Americans were prisoners, had no way to defend themselves, had not been guilty of espionage. Yet they were lined up and shot in cold blood. With them were shot 100 Belgian civilians.

Came the end of the war, and the 73 Nazi storm troopers responsible for the massacre were tried and found guilty. Most of them confessed. "The atrocities," according to a senate report, "were committed by the combat group Peiper and were members of the Waffen SS. . . which had a long, notorious military record on both the western and eastern fronts."

Despite this record, despite the cold-bloodedness of the murder, and despite the fact only 12 of the 73 got the death penalty for killing 450 men, Senator McCarthy put on a terrific campaign last year to get the convictions reversed.

McCARTHY REBUFFED

In speech after speech on the senate floor, he charged that the U. S. army had extorted confessions from the murderers. His campaign was much like that now aimed at the state department, and he was so insistent that a subcommittee of the senate armed services committee finally was appointed to make an investigation.

It wrote a unanimous report upholding the army and inferentially condemning McCarthy. The senator from Wisconsin, the comittee indicated, had been sold a bill of goods by the National Council for the Prevention of War and other outfits with close German connections.

McCarthy's senate colleagues also urged the justice department to investigate the "unusual activity in this case of certain organizations and individuals," and even asked the defense department to probe the "possibility of a plan to revive German nationalistic spirit by discrediting the American military govednment and to determine whether this is part of a larger plan to bring Germany into closer relationship with the Soviet Union."

Thus McCarthy's own colleagues implied that he might be lending himself to the same Communist goals which he now condemns in the state department. They also raised the point that such able SS men as those found guilty at Malmedy should not be released and be permitted to affiliate with "the Communist forces of Europe."

McCarthy's campaign for the Malmedy slayers was played up in German Communist papers, which featured reports that U. S. officers had put match sticks under the fingernails of Nazi prisoners, had tortured their sex organs. Though completely untrue, these reports seriously undermined U. S. military prestige in Germany.

In the end, a senate committee ruled unanimously against the senator from Wisconsin who has now shifted to the state department in his untiring effort to remain in the limelight.

Note—As a result of McCarthy's intimidation of the army, it is still holding up the execution of the 12 Nazis responsible for shooting 350 American G. I.'s and 100 Belgians.

GAS-GO-ROUND

Hottest backfire against the Kerr bill is going to be in the president's home state, where it may defeat Truman's handpicked senatorial candidate, Emory Allison. Missouri is a big gas-consuming state, and GOP Sen. Forrest Donnell has been making the most of Democratic support for the so-called "soak-the-consumer" Kerr bill. . . Missouri Congressman Moulder's last-minute switch to the gas companies will help him. Moulder, a Democrat, was one of four votes changed at the last minute. Congressman Tom Pickett of Texas, as Speaker Rayburn scout, arranged his switch.

Take My Word For It . . . Frank Colby

RAMBLING AMONG WORDS

The Latin word urbs meant originally "a city enclosed by walls or palisades." From urbs came urbanus, "of or pertaining to a city"; hence, "refined, polished, cultured."

Urbanus entered English as urban, meaning "pertaining to or characteristic of a city." This is the source of the word urbane, meaning "polished, suave, citified," pronounced: ur-BAIN. The noun urbanity, meaning "politeness, suavity," is pronounced: ur-BAN-i-tee.

Now let us return to the word urban, from our original stem urbs. Combined with the prefix sub, "under, inferior, subordinate to," we find urban in the word suburban, "the suburbs" (sub- plus urbs).

The prefix inter- means "between." Therefore, an electric railway system operating between two or more cities is called an interurban.

Now let us use the suffix -ite, "a native of or dweller in," and form two more words with urban: The first is urbanite, "one who lives in a city"; the second is suburbanite, "who who lives in the suburbs."

Miracle Of Light

By Gordon Martin

MARTIN

When you're waiting at the corner for a traffic light to switch, and it's late enough you'd think the night would be as dark as pitch, there is brilliance all around you in a bright electric glow, as the countless flashing lights put on a multi-colored show. It's a sight that's always thrilling, making night as bright as day, and you marvel at the wonders of electrical display.

There's a sign that shows a lady on a glinting pink trapeze, and against the sky she's swinging back and forth with supple ease. And another sign nearby displays a fountain in the night, and it showers down its bubbles in a blaze of colored light. Still another slowly spells a name in gleaming letters high, and it's like a giant carnival a-lightin' up the sky.

And the never-ending string of cars with headlights all in line, joins the light parade where every doorway flaunts a glowing sign. In the stars above a tiny light is blinking out a trail, as an airplane soars to heaven with its passengers and mail. You can find no panorama underneath the milky way, that will boast the lighted wonders of electrical display.

Out of the Woodwork—

Letter That Slipped By Soviet Censor Shows Life In Red Zone

By NEA Service

FROM BEHIND the Iron Curtain has come a shocking document, a bitter letter that somehow slipped through the censors, which details the brutality of Soviet masters over a subjugated people.

The letter was received in the U. S. by a woman who lived in Germany from 1939 until 1947. While there she became a close friend of a talented young woman painter. This young artist now lives in Leipzig, in the Soviet Zone.

It was signed with a pseudonym which the American woman recognized as a code to identify her good friend.

To protect the writer, neither her name nor the name or home city of the recipient are being divulged and any names in the letter are disguised.

Some excerpts from the letter follow:

* * *

"We received your dear letter yesterday and thank you for it. As I'm just now in the possession of a typewriter I want to answer it immediately —though anonymously, so I may write more openly. Please acknowledge this letter at your earliest opportunity, provided you receive it. Just mention the date without reference to its content.

"You write, with complete lack of knowledge of existing conditions, that you read such terrible things about the Russian Zone and how do we stand them.

"I must beg of you never to say anything like that in your letters —it could not only cost us our livelihood, but it could also condemn us to lifelong slavery. Free utterance of opinion is a thing only on the paper of the statutes of our new highest democratic republic—which has at last brought 'freedom' to us.

"We've all listened to anti-Communist propaganda, (before and during Hitler's time.) We've heard of the cruelties employed in their fight for world domination. But all that propaganda never made you fully realize how those Bolshevistic methods slowly, painfully drain the very marrow out of the individual who is condemned to the Soviet paradise.

* * *

"Life here is such that you actually become a spy on yourself. You distrust everybody, including yourself. They have an uncanny way of keeping everybody in constant fear because that is the surest way to make you conform.

"Not so long ago Anna was raped by two Russian soldiers. They stuffed a dirty rag into her mouth to prevent her outcry, threw her to the pavement and held her there with an expert wrestler's technique, and then dismissed her with probably the only German words they knew: 'You German swine.'

Things like that happen daily. It isn't the actual degrading experience which is the horrible part of it. What really crushes you is the impression it leaves on your very soul.

"Unless you've lived here, you cannot know what it means to be exposed, without means of defense, to such occurrences. During those endless minutes Anna had to think: 'And over this, too, shine the stars.' We had to fight very hard to have her regain a semblance of balance again.

* * *

"I myself have been urged for the last year to join the SED (the Soviet-supported Socialist Unity (party). Now finally they have me so securely by the neck that I won't be able to elude them any longer without losing my livelihood.

"This week I had to attend one of their meetings. Never before had I more clearly the sensation of being in a vise. The members are put together into groups of 10 and everyone's behavior and attitude is marked for with points —minus and plus. You're only a number.

"Keeping silent is the only temporary refuge for most of us. Should you get a letter from me which tells you of my dismissal from my job, then you will know that I continued to keep silent and was therefore found unworthy of my position.

* * *

"Living conditions have improved somewhat. But don't forget, we have learned to measure by Russian standards —we don't know any others any more. We get enough to eat, if you are satisfied with potatoes, barley and bread. The Russians are bursting out of their uniforms but we still don't get any milk. The smell of the margarine is so rank even the government doctors warned the population not to use it.

"But that is of no importance. Man has become a number. He not only has to work—he has to slave. If he breaks down under the strain or from malnutrition, then he gets four weeks of vacation. If he hasn't recuperated sufficiently in that period to take up slavery again, then he gets a rationing so small that his suffering will soon be over.

"The individual is of no importance any more. You don't wish for anything unless it be for release from this earth. Even success in your profession changes nothing in this attitude. Nothing at all.

* * *

"My boss used to be a convinced Marxist. But some of the happenings made him shake his head. So they put him behind bars for a time. It's dangerous business to shake your head.

"You've probably read how all the Germans in the East Zone contributed heavily to Stalin's birthday. It's hard to understand those Germans. Fact is, that contribution was taken from their pay envelope before they got to see it. Also, all the teachers with their classes had to write personal congratulations to Stalin.

"I'm trying, through all my connections, to get into the West Zone. But I'm too weak and tired to venture such a move without the security of a job.

"You'll be glad to have finished reading this letter—if you ever get it. For you in America, I can only hope that your politics may be such that you never get Communism into your country. Once you get it it is too late. Nobody can free himself from those claws. Then you, too, would have to recite—as we have to here: 'Any peasant in Russia has more culture than an American professor.'"

Defends Census System

Dear Editor:

After reading the letter signed "Still Mad", on the Census Jobs, I would like to state to the readers of the Escanaba Daily Press, and in fairness to the Census Bureau, my experiences with this Bureau during the past forty years.

"Still Mad" says: "I was told . . ." I have usually found statements beginning with this and "I heard," precede misleading information.

"Still Mad" also says: "So far as I know I have never in my whole life made any definite mention to anyone just what I am politically . . ." I have done just the opposite. At a very early age I stated to the world my political beliefs. They are liberal but not being understood they led me to be falsely branded a "red." Nevertheless, in spite of this I was appointed census enumerator under both Republican and Democratic administrations. I was enumerator for the years 1910, 1920, 1930 and 1940. In 1940, after enumerating in three districts in Delta county, I made my final report to the district office, thinking I was through, but I was asked if I would like to enumerate another district in another county, and this I did.

I therefore have every reason to believe that the Census Bureau wants qualified enumerators, not political set-ups. It has a big job to do in a limited time and is sincere in its efforts to obtain efficiency. A poorly taken enumeration can make a lot of trouble and extra work in the district office, especially in regard to farm schedules as all work has to be checked and rechecked there before being sent to Washington, D. C. Any enumerator who turns in good work is handed no "plum". He earns every cent of his compensation.

Yours sincerely,
Charles Laux,
Tecate, Calif.

Good Evening . . .

BY CLINT DUNATHAN

WORLD GOVERNMENT—In a recent column item we told of a reunion in Chicago of the "Deadeyes," an organization composed of World War II veterans of the 96th infantry division, U. S. Army, who were in the thick of the fighting that captured Okinawa from the Japs.

DUNATHAN

That item attracted the attention of Jack Eden, Escanaba business man, who is not a member of the 96th, as you might thing — but of United World Federalists. This is an organization devoted to the advocacy of a world federal government and dedicated to the preservation of world peace.

Too young to serve in World War I and too old for World War II, Jack Eden nevertheless recalls both conflicts all too vividly. For his brother was killed in the first world war; and his eldest son, only 19 years old at the time, was killed on Okinawa—a member of the fighting 96th.

* * *

AND WORLD PEACE—The idea of a world government is not new, but it has received little more than lip service until recent years.

Thomas Aquinas, Daute, Henry of Navarre, Emmanuel Kant, William Penn—many great minds throughout the ages have advanced the idea.

The United World Federalists for World Government was formed in 1947 and advocates a government limited in power and authority to the maintenance of peace—under world law.

* * *

IN WORLD AFFAIRS—We have local government for local affairs; state government for state affairs; national government for national affairs. We need world government for world affairs.

So say the United World Federalists They do not advocate abolishing the United Nations, but rather to transform it into a world government. "Only government can compel people to settle disputes by law rather than force. Only government can make and enforce law."

The United Nations is a league of sovereign states, inadequate to the task of maintaining international peace—as post-war events already bear witness.

* * *

AND WITH RUSSIA—The question of Russian participation in world government has been considered. It is the only major power that has not indicated an interest in such a proposal. The United World Federalists say that federation should not be delayed for that reason.

If partial world federation is accomplished and becomes a working and effective reality, every participating nation would "be better equipped to build its common defenses while waiting a possible Russian change of heart."

* * *

THE ROAD AHEAD—The year 1949 was important to the world government advocates because of the remarkable support received from many sources.

In Washington, D. C., 127 congressmen —105 in the house and 22 in the senate—sponsored a resolution to promote world government. In 15 states resolutions were passed by their legislatures in support of world government.

At Lake Success Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, outspoken advocate of world government, was elected president of the United Nations general assembly.

Twenty-six nations sent delegates to the annual convention of the World Movement for World Federal Government held at Stockholm.

In this country there are now 28 state branches of United World Federalists and more than 700 active chapters.

Into The Past

10 YEARS AGO

Washington—The Russians are making friendly overtures toward the United States, but these expressions of friendship are being received coolly. The officials of this country are particularly incensed by the Stalin-Hitler deal for the parition of Poland, and Russia's uncooperative attitude when the Nazis seized and held an American freighter at Murmansk.

Escanaba—Harold W. (Pat) Gasman and Carl B. Johnson were reelected to the city council and Samuel R. Wickman is a newly elected council member following the balloting yesterday.

Escanaba—George Berg of Brampton township was elected supervisor following a recount of the votes. He polled 118 votes to 115 for Walter Van De Weghe.

Manistique—The Woman's club will hear Dr. Elzada U. Clover, instructor in botany at University of Michigan, at its next meeting. Hostesses for the meeting include Mrs. Norman L. Lindquist, Mrs. E. T. Lundstrom, Mrs. Donald McLean, Mrs. Carl Markley and Mrs. Gustaf Danielson.

20 YEARS AGO

Escanaba—Elmer St. Martin and Edgar D. Anderson were elected to the Escanaba city council in Monday's election. Other candidates were Samuel Mills, John A. Semer and Albin S. Pearson. The proposal to reinstate the band tax was approved by a vote of more than two to one. Daylight saving time was adopted by a 1550 to 1407 vote.

Gladstone—By a 5 to 3 vote, Gladstone electors adopted a proposal for a municipal band. A daylight saving time proposition lost by a 455 to 334 vote.

Escanaba—Representatives of the Escanaba Paper company and the Manistique Pulp & Paper company met in Escanaba to consider plans for the construction of a sulphite pulp plant for the use of the two companies. The two mills are now compelled to import their sulphite pulp from Canada.

New York—William Fox resigned today as president of the Fox Films and Fox Theatres corporations.

Truman To Sign Kerr Gas Bill

Message Reported In Preparation

By MARQUIS CHILDS

WASHINGTON—The best information is that President Truman will sign the Kerr natural gas bill. In fact, a message to explain this action is even now in an early drafting stage.

CHILDS

The president will say that he is most reluctantly putting his signature to the measure that exempts independent producers of natural gas from regulation by the Federal Power commission. He will lean heavily on the section in the act requiring the EPC to make a continuing study of gas prices and to report to the White House if an abrupt rise should occur.

Mr. Truman is not expected to decide finally until he returns to Washington from Florida. During this interval trade unions, consumer groups and just plain citizens will continue to bombard him with reasons why he should not sign the bill.

Rates Will Increase

First and foremost is the conviction that it will mean greatly increased rates both for householders and industrialists. Allied with this is the argument that it is a bonanza for a few very large oil companies with extensive gas reserves. That was the line taken by fair dealers in their vigorous opposition to the Kerr bill on the Senate floor.

It is possible, therefore, that the president will be persuaded in this interval to reject the measure. Opponents have by no means given up and they are pouring telegrams into the White House.

The forces behind this move to take natural gas out from under the regulatory umbrella are powerful within the Democratic party. They have contributed too much oil in the way of campaign funds to keep Democratic machinery turning.

Most conspicuous is Oklahoma's Senator Bob Kerr, himself. He has a booming voice, a smile like a neon sign and a command of the Bible rivaling that of a fundamentalist preacher, all effective weapons in congressional warfare. In the Oklahoma legislature he was an effective representative of oil and gas interests in his region. And he deserves full marks for this initial triumph in Washington.

All-out support came from Speaker Sam Rayburn, Senator Tom Connally and the other Texans in Congress who wield so much authority. Rayburn went through all sorts of maneuvers to insure final passage in the House.

Will Be Criticized

Signing the bill, the president is certain to come in for a political backlash. The theme running through the whole debate was that this is "special interest" legislation. And Harry Truman in that whistle-stop campaign became the self-appointed foe of the "special interests." Campaign oratory may come bouncing back at him.

What points this up is the final vote on the Kerr bill. Twenty-two Republicans voted against it as contrasted to only 16 Democrats. If the pairs are counted of senators not present but recorded on one side or the other, the total Democrats against is 21. Twenty-eight Democrats were recorded as voting for it on the floor and three others were paired for it, making more than a majority of the 54 Democrats.

Among the Republicans voting for it were the two ultra-conservatives, Senators Kem and Donnell, from Truman's own state of Missouri. Donnell, is up for reelection this year and he can be expected to make much of presidential approval of this handout for the "big boys."

As is almost always true in these matters, the issue was not quite the simple contest between the public and the "interests" that it was represented to be. At least two of the largest pipe-line companies were working almost as hard in opposition to the bill as were the fair dealers.

They were fighting it because the measure, in contrast to the Moore-Rieley bill advanced by Republicans in the 80th Congress, exempted only the "independent producers" and not producers that also owned pipe lines. At a critical moment the pipe-line companies are reported to have amassed a phalanx of 40 lobbyists in the Mayflower hotel to try a last-minute blitz on doubtful senators. It was one of those happy occasions when the cynical could protest their moral virtue while at the same time privately responding to the plea of a lobby.

When he finally signs—if he signs—the president will use that contrast with the Republican measure as a further justification for his action. But this will sound a little thin and particularly when the campaign oratory gets going next fall.

Women Weeping More Than Men

This Is Report From Mayo Clinic

By ROBERT C. RUARK

NEW YORK—This has been a busy week for science, which evidently has plenty of time on its hands these days. We come now with an announcement from the Mayo clinic that women cry more copiously than men, by test. More actual tears.

Young girls and women cry the most of all, outstripping their male competitors. They run a dead heat through the middle years. Then the old girls dry up to where they cry a little less than men. This is known as depletion of natural resources, like with oil wells or the New York water supply.

"Adam's Rib"

About the cutest movie I have seen in years was a thing called "Adam's Rib," in which Mr. Spencer Tracy demonstrated that he could cry just as easily as a woman, and with just as little justification. I have tried this experiment in the privacy of my bathroom, and find that I too can weep at the drop of a thought.

What you do is regard yourself rigidly in the mirror. You stare at the redness of your eyes and the little broken veins on your cheeks. You gaze critically at your second (or third) chin, and your eroded hairline. The hickey on your nose comes in for some morose attention, as does the sag of your tummy over the belt line.

Then you start to think. You think about Harry Truman sitting in the sun at Key West, and Mayor O'Dwyer sitting in the sun at Key Largo, and Alger Hiss and the A-bomb and how you haven't got enough tax money to keep the government solvent and about the Russians and about the note at the bank and the size of the rent and about how nobody understands you and bless, gawd, in no time at all the drops are falling like man-induced rain.

Blackmail With Tears

This ala carte weeping is a thing the girls have been getting away with for centuries, as sympathy blackmail and an eloquent argument against male resistance to the purchase of a mink coat. Tears are the oldest female aggressive weapon, and the last thin line of ladylike defense.

A good hard case of the weeps—turned on like a tap, and with just as little basis in emotion—has been the clincher in the running battle forever, with a stout backlog of public relations to the effect that no man ever cries, and no man can resist tears, to double-rivet its potency. Well, I can cry. I can also resist tears. From now on I argue an even shake in the tear industry.

It Takes More Than A Good Yarn To Get By This Test!

GOSH, OFFICER — Ben Anonymous, of 2222 "Late Shower drive", wonders what all the light is about as Sgt. Phil Bruce of the Escanaba police force checks dilation in the pupils of his eyes. This is one of several tests used by city police in determining the degree of intoxication when holding "drunk drivers" or persons held on a disorderly complaint. The pupils are open or large when the person is intoxicated.

HMMFF—"What'd you say, offisher," is standard reaction to this part of the intoxication test. Police ask the drunk to put his right finger to his nose, left finger to his nose, etc. Most drunks get both hands out in front see-sawing to get there first. Here Mr. Ben Anonymous gets dizzy just watching his finger coming up to his nose. By the way, Ben's "right" hand is the one he is using.

HAH-HAHH!—Here Ben fools Sgt. Phil Bruce by staying right on the line. Of course, if he misses, it's the line's fault. Almost anyone who winds up taking the drunk test will tell you, "the darn thing moves." The form Sergeant Bruce has in his hand is the standard blank on which results of the test are recorded. The forms can be used in court to verify statements by arresting officers.

HOW MUCH FARTHER?—Most intoxicated persons don't get very far on this test before they "blank out," so Sergeant Phil Bruce is all set in the background. The drunk tests used at the police station were instituted last fall by Jack Koernke, former Escanaba safety director. Ben made out okay on this part.

WHOOPS!—Retrieving the coin dropped by the police officer is a grand stickler in the drunk test. Most fall over as soon as their face is parallel to the floor. Here Ben gets awfully close, but begins to wobble. Recently police officers were regaled when a fellow taking the test grumbled," What'd you drop it for?" (Escanaba Press Photos)

Will It Rain In New York?

Babson Discourses About The Weather

NEW YORK CTY—One of the chief topics of discussion here today is whether Dr. rving Langmuir and his Harvard friends will succeed in making it rain.

Scientific vs. Legal Phases

Of course, based on statistics, nature favors their reputation. Every day New York goes without rain, the chances increase that the rain makers will be "successful." If no rain occurs after they doctor the clouds, their experiments will be of some value; but if rain does occur, no one can tell whether or not rain would have come without this doctoring.

Perhaps the most interesting feature will be the results of the legal suits: (1) Those brought by business concerns— department stores, amusement centers and building contractors—who do not want rain; and (2) Those brought by communities other than New York City who will claim that New York "stole" rain which they greatly needed. One thing the rain makers have accomplished. They are giving the gambling element something new to bet upon! So much for this New York experiment.

Watch Weather Maps

The real thought which I have in mind is to emphasize the importance of watching the daily U. S. Weather Maps as they appear in most city newspapers. My reason, however, is not to know per se, if it is to rain or be fair, if it is to be colder or warmer; but how the change is to affect the behavior, disposition, judgment and courage of you and me. Upon these things our happiness and business success largely depends.

The first step is to learn how to interpret this Weather Map. The newspaper tells you what the weather will probably be tomorrow. But when making plans for advertising, business interviews, committee meetings, etc., we should know what weather conditions to expect a few days ahead. This we can usually do by studying the Weather Map. Certainly, every child in school should be taught how to forecast the weather from this daily Weather Map.

My Weather Rules

In my own life I use the weather forecasts as follows: Rule 1. If I want someone to take a favorable attitude or to answer "Yes" on some project, I wait for a cool and clear day a rising barometer. (I have a barometer over my desk beside my clock.) I always can get better results by so waiting. Rule 2, If someone wants to call upon me whom I do not care much about seeing, I make a date when the day probably will be cloudy or muggy with a falling barometer. I have two reasons for this: (a) Because the person then may not have the energy to call and (b) Because it will be much easier for me to say "No" when the barometer is falling and I don't feel well. Looking back on my life it seems as if 90 per cent of my mistakes were due to my not having the guts to say "No" and stick to it!

Watch Your Step

Rule 3: Last week Mrs. Babson and I celebrated our Golden Wedding. Naturally we—like every other couple who have been married 50 years—have had rows! But when—last week—discussing our experiences, it was evident that every serious "flair up" started accidentally over some very insignificant and unexpected word. With my present knowledge of weather psychology, I believe that the weather was an important factor in starting most of those unhappy days. Hence, my Rule 3 is to "Watch my step during such cloudy or muggy days" and keep away from other people as much as I can, remembering that the weather is making them "touchy" or a little ugly as well as it is affecting me unfavorably.

Rule 4: Finally, I no longer telephone the doctor when members of my family have pains or think they are sick without first looking at the barometer: If there has been a sudden weather change, I say: "Cheer up. You'll be O. K. tomorrow. Today's aches and depression are due to a changing weather condition!" This forecast is usually correct and all the family are again feeling fine in a day or so. This barometer pays for itself every month. I wish I could be as successful forecasting the stock market!

Says Americans Great Wasters

Bennett Tells Loss From Soil Erosion

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON D. C.—(AP)—Dr. Hugh Hammond Bennett, internationally-famed conservationist, says the United States "undoubtedly holds the world's record for waste." Chief of the Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service, he says we have allowed erosion to ruin around 100,000,000 acres of formerly good cropland for any immediate practical cultivation. We have followed this up with moderate to serious damage on a second 100,000,000 acres, he adds.

But what plagues him personally is that most of us have "gotten into the habit of burning or throwing away everything for which we find no immediate use." Many odd items of wood which so commonly find their way to the scrap heap can be used, he says. He showed how recently in a small display of his collection of woodproducts. Here such common and plentiful woods as sumac, boxelder, willow and even the detested mesquite of Texas had been used for distinctive pieces of furniture and other articles.

Articles from Waste

One is an exquisite, small table that W. H. Lathrop, of the Soil Conservation Service, made for him in his spare time. The top is made from a burl taken from boxelder, a wood that usually is considered worthless—not even good enough for firewood. This table has the luster and mottling of fine marble. Dr. Bennett also has some goblets and casks made from farm waste pieces; a willow table with wild cherry center, the top bordered in lilac; stools of ginkgo, sumac, paw paw, buckeye; a coffee table from river birch; items from black locust from Thomas Jefferson's farm in Albemarle County, Va. and chestnut from Jefferson's father's farm; bowls and boxes of Texas mesquite.

Believes In Thrift

Dr. Bennett got interested in making things out of woods that are thrown away about three years ago. He got some of his boys to pick up the various kinds of woods and send them in to him. Some with workshops made the pieces he now has. He hopes the idea will catch on, but he says "we are probably going to have to do a lot of educating in order to get anywhere with the development of any national habits of thrift" in the sense he means.

Dr Bennett first came to the Department of Agriculture in July, 1903, in what was then known as the Bureau of Soils. Sixty-nine this month, he says he was born "down on Tobacco Road, never saw a Republican" until he was 14, and he still "can't pronounce the letter r."

Girl Scout Training Course Here, Gladstone

Mrs. Adrian F. Fick, Girl Scout professional trainer of Region 7, will conduct a training course in Gladstone and Escanaba, Tuesday through Thursday, April 11, 12 and 13. Courses of training will be offered all leaders, assistant leaders, commitee chairmen, board members and camp commitee members. She will also have meetings with some of the troop members and their leaders.

Mrs. Fick was formerly the community advisor in charge of training for Region 7, and has been in Delta county on several previous occasions. Most Delta county Girl Scout leaders will remember her as Marion Montgomery, her maiden name.

Girl Scout organizations throughout the county recently have become consolidated into the Delta County Area Council of Girl Scouts, and this three day training course will be offered on an area basis. Mrs. Fick has planned her training sessions to offer specific help for the particular needs of this area.

Meeting Places

Training sessions in Gladstone will be held in the Legion hall on North 9th street, with the exception of the senior troops which will meet in the home economics room of the high school. Sessions in Escanaba on Tuesday will be held in St. Stephen's Episcopal church and at the Carnegie library on Thursday.

All leaders attending training courses will be given credit toward an advanced leadership course. Because of the greatly increased membership in Girl Scouting in this area, and the necessary increase in leadership, this training course is being given to bring the best possible program to the largest number of girls. Such training as Mrs. Fick offers is made available through the Community Chest appropriation and helps maintain the high standards of the Girl Scout program, offering the very highest return on the investment of each Community Chest dollar.

Class Schedule

The training session time schedule is as follows:

11:00-12:00 a. m. — Tuesday, April 11, in Escanaba. Training for the program committee chairmen of the county, Gladstone and Escanaba.

2:00-4:00 p. m.—Tuesday, April 11, in Escanaba. Training for intermediate leaders and co-leaders whose girls are 10-11.

7:30-9:30 p. m.—Tuesday, April 11, in Escanaba. Training for intermediate leaders and co-leaders whose girls are 12-14.

11:00-12:00 a. m.—Wednesday, April 12, in Gladstone. Training for the Gladstone community committee.

1:45-3:45 p. m. — Wednesday, April 12, in Gladstone. Training for Brownie leaders and co-leaders whose girls are 7-8.

3:45 p. m. — Wednesday, April 12, in Gladstone. Meeting with Gladstone senior troops and their leaders.

7:30-9:30 p. m. — Wednesday, April 12, in Gladstone. Training for Delta county area board and the community committee of Gladstone, Escanaba and Nahma.

11:00-12:00 a. m. — Thursday, April 13, in Escanaba. Meeting with the Delta County Day Camp committee and any other camp people.

2:00 p. m.—Thursday, April 13, in Escanaba. Training for Brownie leaders and co-leaders whose girls are 8-9.

4:00 p. m.—Thursday, April 13, in Escanaba. Meeting in Junior High school room 109 with Junior High troops and leaders.

Oscar Vannbergs Leave Next Week To Visit Sweden

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Vannberg, 506 South 17th street, are leaving Wednesday, April 12, for New York city, where they will board the liner Gripsholm for Gothenberg, Sweden on April 14.

The Vannbergs will spend three months visiting relatives in Gothenberg and Orebro, Sweden. Mr. Vannberg, who left Sweden, his native country, 39 years ago, has two sisters and three brothers in Gothenberg.

It will be the first trip back for the Escanaba plumber. Mrs. Vannberg has never been to Sweden, but has maternal relatives near Orebro.

Miss Hilma Larson, North 16th street, will accompany the Vannbergs to Sweden and will spend several months there with relatives.

When you make a long-distance telephone call, try placing an hour-glass egg timer on the stand. It's timed for three minutes and will tell you when your time is up.

Soap Box Orators At Boston May Get Competition Of TV

BOSTON—(AP)—Television may be used to combat the expounding of unAmerican doctrines on Boston common.

The city council figures that televised baseball and other events would take the play away from soap box orators.

They are now allowed to set forth their theories from Parkman bandstand without police interruptions.

"A television program," councilor Francis P. Tracey said, "would eliminate this condition in an effective and attractive American way."

The council voted to ask the park commissioner to install a big screen at the bandstand.

Gets 30 Days For Bad Check

Escanaban Writes Em Without Account

Emil Parin of Escanaba went to jail for 30 days Thursday when he pleaded guilty to a charge of issuing a worthless check before Justice of Peace A. T. Sohlberg.

Justice Sohlberg gave the alternative of paying a fine of $25.00 and court costs and making restitution, but Parin was unable to do so. It was disclosed that Parin had been in court previously on a similar charge.

A warrant alleging the same charge has been issued for the arrest of Jack Parin, Escanaba, a brother of Emil.

In neither instance did the men have accounts at the banks upon which the checks were drawn.

The checks were cashed by two local taverns.

Father May Buy Pinless Diaper

SANTA ANA, Calif — (AP) — H. A. Schwilck is manufacturing a pinless diaper which he expects to make him a hero among papas.

Invented by a Mrs. J. C. Slusser, of Pomona, Calif., the new diaper may be adjusted to various sizes and held fast by snaps. It is cut and sewed to a pattern and requires no folding or pins.

Schwilck plans to distribute them nationally. He says they will cost slightly more than standard diapers.

Gasoline Tax Revenue Mounts In Michigan

LANSING—(AP)—While the legislature argued over increasing the state gasoline tax, the present three cents per gallon levy climbed to new revenue heights.

Secretary of State Fred M. Alger, jr., announced that a gross total of $10,807,276 in gasoline taxes had been collected for the first quarter of this year. This exceeded revenue for the same period of 1949 by more than $600,000.

Collections for the same period of 19941, the peak pre-war year, were $7,600,000.

City Election Vote Checked

Canvass Reveals No Change In Totals

Canvass of the vote in last Monday's annual city election made Thursday evening disclosed no change in results from the unofficial returns announced earlier this week.

As a result Frank Quinn and George Mathison were declared elected to the city commission for three year terms. Both were incumbents, seeking second terms.

The totals as approved were Quinn 466, Mathison 457, Rev. Theophil Hoffmann 428 and Fred Hoover 290.

Reorganization of the commission will be made at the regular meeting Monday evening at which time the mayor, mayor pro-tem and county supervisors will be named.

Charles W. Bretz Is Summoned

Funeral Services Monday Afternoon

Charles W. Bretz, 75, widely known as an amateur florist and lover of nature, died Thursday morning at his home at 552 Manistique avenue. He had been ill for about two weeks.

Mr. Bretz was born in Lake Odessa township, in Ionia county, on January 1, 1875 and grew to manhood in that vicinity. In 1900 he moved to Rudyard where he entered the hardware business, residing there until 1910. He also lived for a year or so in Houghton, then Engadine and thirty years ago moved to Manistique.

He was married at Saranac on Jan. 12, 1896, to Miss Alice Hauge and the couple celebrated their golden wedding anniversary four years ago. He was a member of the Odd Fellows lodge and attended the First Methodist church. He was last employed by the city, retiring eight years ago.

Always a lover of flowers, he put the years since his retirement to good use by devoting most of his time during summer months to the growing of unusual plants. His hunting camp south of Germfask was made particularly beautiful under his care.

Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. Alice Bretz; three daughters, Mrs. Thelma Bommer, Charleston, W. Va.; Miss Marjorie Bretz, Kalamazoo; and Mrs. Faye Anderson, of Manistique; and a sister, Mrs. William Curtis, of Lake Odessa. There are also two grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at the Morton funeral home on Monday afternoon, at :00 o'clock. The Rev. John Safran will conduct the services and burial will be in Fairview cemetery.

Personnel Of Tax Allocation Board Announced

Appointment of the Schoolcraft county tax allocation board is announced by G. Leslie Bouschor, county clerk. Three of these members, selected by Probate Judge Ralph W. Merwin are E. H. Jewell, representing municipalities at large; William J. Brain, of Germfask, representing the rural areas of the county and William Strassler, of Cooks, representing school districts providing courses up to the eighth grade. Also on the board, as provided by the statutes are the county treasurer, Miss Laura Williams; and county superintendent of schools, Mrs. Ada Watson.

This group will meet next Monday when a chairman will be chosen and other matters of organization acted upon.

The personnel of the board is the same as it was last year, the appointment being in the nature of a formality.

Pickle Jar Looted

GRAND RAPIDS — (AP)—Somebody doublecrossed the patrons of a tavern in nearby Ada township. They had been contributing toward a fund to stage a dinner and dance. The pickle jar, containing $48 in donations, was the only cash taken by thieves who broke into the tavern Tuesday.

Seniors Present Class Play

Greeted By Near Capacity House

The unpredictable series of events in life of the Graves family as presented in the annual senior class play of Manistique high school, provided pleasing diversion for the near capacity crowd that attended the performance at the high school auditorium Wednesday evening.

The young actors, under the direction of Marvin Frederickson, enacted "Junior Miss," a Broadway success. The play, dealing principally with juveniles, was well adapted for presentation by young people and scored a hit with the audience.

Dan Van Eyck played the role of the beseiged father, Harry Graves with Joan Sheahan supporting in the part of Grace Graves, his wife. Sally Carlstrom played the role of the older of the two daughters, Lois Graves while Joyce McNamara starred as the real trouble maker of the family—the thirteen year old daughter, Judy. Judy was aided in her machinations by "her only real bosom friend", Fluffy Adams, played by Gladys Strasler. The Scandinavian maid of the family was portrayed by Joan Vaughn. Bruce Plichta played the role of the senior member J. B. Curtis of the law firm by which Mr. Graves is employed, with Nadine Westin playing the role of his daughter, Ellen Curtis. Uncle Willis Reynolds was portrayed by Bob Carlson. Joe, the elevator boy, was played by Charles McNamara. Don Foye played the role of Barlow Adams, Fluffy's brother, and Alan Ott played Judy's prospective boy-friend, Haskell Cummings jr. Wilbur LaBar played the role of the Western Union boy. Ron Morton was Merrill Feurbach, Duke Harbick was Sterling Brown, George Macfarlane was Albert Kunody, Norman Jahn was Charles, and Dan Rubick was Henry—all of them presented the variety of boy-friends acquired by Lois.

In this play, as is often the case, a minor character stole the show. Calvin Anderson, playing the role of Tommy Arbuckle (another of Lois's boy-friends) did a hilarious scene with the members of the Graves family when he called for Lois the day after a New Year's Eve party. Tommy, a straight forward fellow, was the only person on the scene who was in a reasonable condition after the night's celebration. The comedy of the scene was aided immensely by the background illusion of suffering and repentence that was set up by the members of the family.

4-H Girls Hold Style Review

Serve As Models For Garments They Made

Garments prepared by girl members of Schoolcraft County 4-H clubs were presented at the annual style review at the Oak theatre on Thursday afternoon. More than fifty garments ranging from suits to aprons and housedresses were placed on display, the girls serving as models of their own garments.

Girls chosen to represent Schoolcraft county at Camp Shaw were Margaret Tull and Isadeen Swagart as delegates and Rosalie Leckson, alternate. Honorable mention in the style review was won by Loretta Segerstrom, Barbara Cody, Carol Latch, Patricia Duquette, Hope Wilson, Ellen Faye Williams and Nancy Clifton.

The program at the Oak theatre included musical selections by Miss Janet Dixner, accordionist and vocal selections by club members from Germfask. Winners in other achievements which were on display Wednesday and Thursday at the Roller Rink were also announced.

Assisting Fred Bernhardt, club leader were Mrs. Harrison Beach, as announcer, and Miss Dorothy Erler and Ben Westrate of Marquette, assistant State 4-H club leaders, who made the awards.

Judges for the event were Miss Erler and Mr. Westrate of Marquette and Mrs. Malcolm Nelson and Miss Helen Burns.

Deer Short Of Food, Move Out Of Swamps

LANSING—(AP)—Lower Peninsula deer are moving out of the swamps and over most of their summer range in all districts, the state conservation department reported.

Deer are again being spotted in large numbers in the Traverse City orchard area. A total of 22 starved fawns have been picked up so far in Oscoda, Crawford, Roscommon, Alcona and Iosco counties, game managers said.

Deer also are leaving some yards in the Upper Peninsula, especially in southern regions. Yarding continues in the Newberry district in the Escanaba district, deer are reported hard pressed for food.

Circuit Court To Convene

Opening On Monday At Two O'clock

The April term of Schoolcraft county circuit court will convene Monday afternoon, beginning at 2:00 o'clock with the Hon. Herbert W. Runnells, circuit judge presiding.

As is usually the case, the chief order of business on Monday will be calling the calendar—setting the time of the cases that will be tried. It will also be determined at that time whether the services of the jury selected to serve will be required.

There are four criminal cases on the docket, thirteen civil cases and about twenty chancery cases.

It is expected that this term will last longer than usual.

Youth Rally To Be Held Saturday At Bethel Baptist

A youth rally will be held at Bethel Baptist church this Saturday evening at 7:30. Rev. Carl Olson, youth evangelist from St. Paul, Minn., who has been the speaker at special Easter services at Bethel, will give the message. His stirring messages and dramatic presentation of great gospel truths have stirred an unusual interest in the meetings and brings increasingly good crowds. He has a specially challenging message for young people. Special music and spirited singing that will long be remembered. All youth of the city are invited. Adults also welcome.

The special services will close Sunday evening. Sunday services will be held at the usual hours, with Rev. Olson as speaker. A short Easter program and pageant will also be given by the Sunday school in the morning. Parents and friends are invited.

Mt. Whitney, California, highest point in the U. S., is 14,495 feet.

Five Bills To Curb Chiseling On Relief Framed At Lansing

LANSING — (AP)—Senator Colin L. Smith (R-Big Rapids), Tuesday bucked Governor Williams' opposition by submitting five bills designed to curtail "chiseling" on relief.

Williams, in his message to the legislature, opened the door on only a part of one of Smith's bills, but the Big Rapids senator contended that the governor had opened the door by endorsing tighter relief administration in his message.

Smity, chairman of a legislative committee which has investigated reported relief abuses, said that if Williams vetoed the bills he would have to take the blame.

These are Smith's bills:

1—Require approval of the state administrative board before the state can grant counties more than 50 per cent of their welfare funds.

2—Allow only temporary relief to applicants until an applicant has: Asked the help of the friend of the court to obtain alimony or separate maintenance if due; obtained official advice on seeking support in desertion cases, made certain he is not eligible for help from unemployment compensation, old age assistance, veterans benefits, aid to dependent children and similar programs; registered with the state employment service; not refused work at fair rates; obtained what help is available from responsible relatives.

3—Authorize county and city welfare agencies to establish eligibility rules for applicants, give the state power to audit case records to determine whether the rules are being obeyed and allow the state to withhold welfare grants if the rules or laws are being broken.

4—Penalize welfare recipients who fail to report earnings, income or resources, and welfare agency officials and employes who knowingly give relief to ineligible or cheating applicants.

5—Allow the state to file claims for reimbursement from the estates of welfare recipients if the heirs would not be hurt, and allow reimbursement agreements if the applicant's need is based on inability to obtain assets snagged in legal or administrative disputes.

Smith said he doubted whether any other welfare reform bills would be submitted by his committee.

Three resolutions on a variety of subjects went into the two chambers.

Senator Frank Heath (R-Bay City) proposed a joint committee to study the advisability of staggering the issuance of liquor licenses in the interest of economy and efficiency.

Rep. N. D. Edwards (D-Detroit) proposed a study of the council of state governments and congress of overlapping federal and state fields of taxation.

Rep. Robert N. Montgomery (R-Lansing) asked for three more members on the legislative committee for government reorganization and legal status for the committee's citizens' and management advisory committees.

Spilling The Dope

By Charlie Larson

It's easy to see why our old skiing friend, George Mathison is a "city father" in Gladstone. He's a diplomat.

"Commissioner", as he is "knowed as," takes us to task — very gently—for suggesting that basketball coaches in the Upper Peninsula let down the bars a little in the matter of no contact play.

Larson

It was the subtle way in which he did it that tickles us. No name calling. Not even a mention of a difference of opinion. Just sez "Larson says this" BUT this is the answer.

All we've got to say, George, is that Cappy Keil indicated his belief to us that his boys may have lost the semi-final game in East Lansing in that second half because of "different officiating" — meaning more leniency.

Therefore, we say, if Upper Peninsula teams are going to encounter that at the state tournament and lose occasionally because of it, why not "do as the Romans do while in Rome?"

* * * *

And, we suspect, George misinterpreted our mention of Keil having a "rival" as coach of the year when we noted that the Soo Kiwanis club had named Karl Parker, coach of Brimley's class D state champs, as "coach of the year."

We were merely kidding Soo Kiwanis for having a champion of their own.

In our own book, Cappy is a "coach of the year" every year. Not just this one. His record over the years speaks for itself. If anyone needs more proof, just watch how Al Kircher, Jim Rouman and a lot of his other boys who have made good still look up to him. He's still "coach" to them.

* * * *

Dutch Cummings' Kingsford' athletic director, says he's getting the bounce as football and basketball coach because his teams "have not been winning enough games." This year, his football team won two and lost six and his cagers won six and lost 10. In 1944, he produced the Flivver's only unbeaten and untied football team and won the Upper Peninsula title. He previously coached at Lake Linden, St. Johns, Belding and at New London, Wis.

The school board is mum on reason for the action.

MSC Picks Coach But He's Unsigned

EAST LANSING, —(AP)—Michigan State has chosen a new basketball coach.

There's just one hitch.

Wilbur N. (Sparky) Stalcup of the University of Missouri — MSC's choice—has yet to accept the job.

Eidently MSC was at least premature in making an announcement that Stalcup, long a tutor of winning teams, had been engaged.

Late yesterday Athletic Director Ralph Young announced that Stalcup was the man.

The Missourian, however, said last night he had not made up his mind whether to accept. He said at Columbia, Mo., that there apparently had been a "misunderstanding."

Stalcup added that he would have his decision ready by tonight.

"Mr. Young apparently issued the statement of my appointment through a misunderstanding," Stalcup said. "I talked with him by telephone tonight and told him I would let him know Friday night."

Stalcup confirmed, however, that MSC had offered him the job.

MSC chose him to succeed Al Kircher, who quit after a year with the Spartan basketballers to go to Washington State as a football backfield coach under Forest Evashevski, former MSC grid aide.

A coach for 15 years, the 39-year-old Stalcup has a record of 256 victories and 95 defeats. In his four years at Missouri his teams have won 54 games and lost 43. His team last season won 14 and lost ten.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

AUGUSTA, Ga.,—(AP)—Skee Riegel, a rookie in the pro business though not in golf, was taking a ribbing from his rivals after his pace setting 69 in the Masters tournament yesterday . . . The general theme was: "You can win some money here, so you're bearing down. You didn't play this way when you couldn't take the cash." . . . Skee, who turned pro only a few months ago, still is serving his six-months "probation" before he can collect prize money in PGA sponsored events. The Masters, being very independent, doesn't have to observe that restriction . . . In his best tournament performances as a pro so far, Skee has tied for 12th at St. Petersburg and tied for 14th at San Antonio.

Fashion Notes:

Charlie (Thin Man) Coe, the amateur champ, tried to fend off cold winds with a wool shirt, two sweaters and a poplin windbreaker. All that couldn't make him look fat . . . Jimmy Demaret wore chartreuse green slacks topped by a salmon pink sweater. No wonder George Fazio says he's color blind.

Mail Bag

Baseball scouts are keeping close tab on Billy Henderson, Georgia's All-Southeastern conference outfielder, who hit .371 over the past three seasons and stole 26 bases in 26 games last year . . . The Baltimore Colts have signed a 240-pound center from Western Michigan college named Charles Schoolmaster. They looked last season as if they could stand a few more teachers . . . New American bowling congress merit award is a belt buckle . . . How about bowlers who can't get inside a belt? . . . When a Kansas U. footballer ran too wide on an end sweep the other day, Coach Jules Sikes hollered: "Close the gates before we lose a halfback." . . . They take that precaution all the time in this sector.

Leafs Baffle Detroit Six

Even Penalties Fail To Help Home Boys

DETROIT—(AP)—Veteran Turk Broda applied a third coat of whitewash to the Detroit Red Wings' Stanley Cup hopes last night as he beat them 2-0 to give Toronto a commanding edge in the semifinal series.

It was Broda's third shutout in five games and left the Maple Leafs with a 3-2 edge in the best of seven series. The sixth game will be played at Toronto Saturday and the seventh—if necessary—here Sunday.

But judging from the way the Leafs performed last night, the odds didn't seem to be very strong in favor of that seventh game.

Broda was in complete command as the Leafs skated circles around the seemingly tired Detroit club.

It was a disappointing performance for 14,806 fans—largest crowd of the season at Olympia.

Tipoff for the night's performance came in the sixth minute of the game when Toronto's Bill Ezonicki drew a five minute major penalty for highsticking Red Kelly. That should have been the Red Wings big scoring opportunity. But they failed to get a shot in those five minutes as Toronto's deadly checking, plus Broda's alertness, kept the Detroit attack pretty disorganized.

Nine Penalties

Toronto drew nine penalties for 21 minutes while Detroit had three for six minutes. Despite that penalty advantage Detroit did not score.

In the first five minutes of the second period the Leafs got two penalties in succession. It meant Toronto played two men short for 57 seconds, but even with that advantage Detroit could not do anything with Broda.

Toronto got its first goal at 10:35 of the first period, Ted Kennedy banging a 15-footer past Detroit Goalie Harry Lumley. The latter incidentally, was the one bright spot in the Detroit picture as he turned in 29 saves, six of them bordering on the sensational side. Broda had 21 stops.

At 8:37 as Max Bentley stole the puck from Lee Fogolin, skated in and backhanded a nifty five-footer past Lumley to give Toronto its 2-0 margin.

RANGERS REACH FINALS

Coach Lynn Patrick believes his New York Rangers are a cinch to win the Stanley Cup if they "can keep the sharp edge."

The Rangers advanced to professional hockey's world series finals last night by downing Montreal 3-0. They won the semifinal series.

Little Jack Gordon, a rookie from the Ranger's New Haven farm, shot the visitors into a lead good enough for victory at Montreal.

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS

National League (Best-of-7)

New York 3, Montreal 0. (New York wins, 4-1).

Toronto 2, Detroit 0. (Toronto leads, 3-2).

MID-SEASON MANNER — Wayne Terwilliger hits dirt to score against Cleveland in an exhibition game won by the Cubs, in Los Angeles. Catcher Jim Hegan of the Indians hustdles out to take throw, as the Chicago second baseman roars home with spikes high in business-like manner.

Mikulich Is Speaker

RAPID RIVER — William (Bill) Mikulich, former Traunik boy who starred in basketball and tennis at University of Michigan, will be the principal speaker at the annual Central UP league banquet at Rapid River high school gym Wednesday, April 12.

Mikulich currently is finishing up on his master's degree at Ann Arbor.

The dinner is scheduled for 7 o'clock and will be followed from 8:30 to 10:30 by a dance for students of high schools belonging to the league. Ivan Kobasic and his orchestra will furnish the music.

Coach Norman Slough of Rapid River high school said the banquet is open to players of league teams from Rapid River, Nahma, Cooks, Perkins, Bark River-Harris, Powers, Rock and Trenary.

Big Names In Trouble As Riegel Heads Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. — (AP)—Stars of the 14th Masters tournament field tried again today to break the spell of a championship course and find the way to glory on its rolling greens.

Only stocky Skee Riegel managed sub-70 shooting among the 65 golfers yesterday in the first round. Riegel celebrated his first major tournament try as a professional by firing a 69.

Just seven other golfers broke par 72 at the great Augusta National course which has seen the best and conquered most of them.

The 6,900 yards of thickly sodded, never flat fairways and the hillocked greens were exceedingly rough for all but a few.

Jim Ferrier of San Francisco, Horton Smith of Detroit, Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif.; Lawson Little of Monterey, Calif., and Herchel Spears of Huntsville, Ala., got under par with 70's.

Little Toney Penna of Cincinnati and defending champion Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., had 71's. Johnny Palmer, the Badin, N. C. pro who was picked to win the Masters by fellow golfers, managed a round in par.

Many another great of golf was left with the kind of score hardly worth whispering about—Jack Burke, jr., Lloyd Mangrum and Chick Harbert with 76's and Byron Nelson, Herman Keiser, Cary Middlecoff and Herman Baron with 75's.

Ben Hogan and national amateur champion Charlie Coe tied with George Fazio at 73.

There was a striking similarity with 1949 as the 1950 Masters went into the second round.

At the opening of the second round last year, a 69 led the field—Lloyd Mangrum's. Today, Riegel's 69 was best. At the opening of the second 1949 round 51 golfers had scores below 80. It was the same today—51 players were under 80.

Former Buckeye Coach Gets Job At Northwestern

CHICAGO — (AP) — Northwestern has a new basketball coach—a former "Big Tenner."

He is Harold G. Olsen, whose Ohio State teams from 1922 to 1946 won five Western conference titles. Olsen resigned at Ohio State to coach the Chicago Stags pro club and then left the Stags a year ago. He succeeds Arthur (Dutch) Lonborg, who resigned after 23 years at Northwestern to become University of Kansas athletic director.

Northwestern also named Robert P. Reihsen, a Minnesota athlete from 1929-1931, as an assistant football coach to fill a post also left by Lonborg's resignation. Reihsen has been Evanston, Ill., township high school coach and previously had coached at Bessemer, Mich.

Only Chick Evans (1916) and Bobby Jones (1930) have won the U. S. Amateur and Open Golf championships in the same year.

Silver Gloves Fighters Set

Exams, Weigh-ins To Be Saturday

Contestants in the three-day Silver Gloves boxing tournament, which opens Monday night at 7:30 at the St. Joe gym, will weigh in and be given physical examinations at the gym, starting at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

After they have been approved, the boys will be paired for tournament activity.

About 100 youngsters from Escanaba, Wells, Munising, Marinette, Cornell and surrounding communities are expected to compete.

The tournament is being sponsored by the Elks club in co-operation with the city recreation department. It will be held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. Art Peterson will be referee.

The local boys have been practicing under the direction of Jerome Deloria of the recreation department and he reports they are generally in good condition and plenty willing to mix it.

The ring was set up in the St. Joe gym yesterday and the boys already have begun practicing in it although regular workouts are being held in the Webster school and North Side fire hall.

NCAA Sanity Code Totters

CHICAGO — (AP)—The NCAA's embattled sanity code appeared geared for revision today after a fact-finding meeting of the nation's athletic chiefs.

Officials of 20 conferences drafted six proposals for amending the code. They were kept secret.

NCAA President Hugh C. Willett of Southern California said they ranged from "absolutely no change up to considerable additional aid for worthy athletes."

The proposals appeared much like those which have been publicly espoused by Michigan State college through its prexy, John A. Tannah.

The proposals, Willett said, pointed toward these common aims: 1—That athletes getting aid must be academically worthy both in college entrance and progress towards degree requirements; 2—There must be positive and definite evidence aid recipients need assistance (no "across-the-boards-grants") 3—All such aids must be administered by regular campus agencies.

The proposals, undoubtedly including the south's suggestion for free board and room to the needy, now will be funnelled to a screening committee.

Only seven World Series games have been played in Cleveland, the lowest total of any major league city.

MSC Transfers Looking Good

Ex-Navy, Irish Gridders Star

EAST LANSING— (AP) —Some beefy boys who arrived here by way of the transfer route are among the best-looking prospects at the Michigan State college spring football workouts.

One standout is Don McAuliffe, left half from Chicago, Ill., who was a much-discussed athlete while he was trying to make up his mind just where he wanted to play football.

McAuliffee was at Notre Dame and Navy before he switched to Michigan State. He has been getting a lot of attention from the coaches, who count on the hard-driving runner as a regular. He looked impressive as he bowled over would-be tacklers in the contact work sessions.

Two linesmen who came to MSC from Notre Dame also look like sure starters. The most impressive-looking is 230-pound tackle Deane Thomas, also of Chicago. Thomas is fast despite his weight and should hold up one end of the line as long as his eligibility lasts.

Another Chicago product, and the third of the three who chum around together, is Dick Kuh, a 220-pounder, also from Notre Dame. Kuh plays guard and has looked good in early practice.

Although the squad is still confined to the fieldhouse by flood waters lapping at the practice field, Coach Biggie Munn has started contact work. His Spartans are tackling and blocking as if it were mid-fall although Munn has been blowing a quick whistle to stop the action as soon as the ball carrier is hit.

Munn still hopes to get outside by the end of the week and, if the weather and water allow, may have a full-scale scrimmage Saturday.

Who Is Dolores?

"Ringer" Embarrasses Costa Rican Middleweight

NEW YORK—(AP)—Anybody seen a stocky 152-pounder with the word "Dolores" tatooed on his chest?

Tuzo (Kid) Portuguez, a chagrinned middleweight from Costa Rica, is looking for him. So are red-faced fight officials in Kansas, put in the middle by boxing's biggest "ringer case" in years.

"Dolores," freely translated, from Spanish, means "miseries."

A mysterious gladiator used Portuguez' name Wednesday night in Wichita, Kas., to absorb a first round knockout and pick up a pocketful of cash—$225.

"Knockout in first round—very embarrassing," the 22-year-old Madison Square Garden headliner said in his best Spanish. He doesn't speak English very well.

"I never hear of Kansas. I never hear of this fellow Williams."

Alvin Williams, a 161-pound Wichita Indian, gave the tattoo a good working over and knocked out the fighter listed as Costa Rica's Portuguez in two minutes, 33 seconds.

The beaten battler collected his purse and did a quick fadeout. He hadn't been located early today.

"It wasn't me," insisted Portuguez. "Se, no tattoo." He stripped off a jacket and red shirt to display a muscled but unlabelled chest.

Who, then, was the fighter with the inch and a half tattoo on his chest and intimate knowledge of Portuguez?

The Wichita promoter said he obtained the boxer from a Kansas City agent.

The agent was not available for comment.

Portuguez has been in the United States six months and has had four bouts, three in Madison Square Garden.

Toledo Fighter Loses In Lansing

LANSING— (AP) —Sammy Mastrean of Pittsburgh outpunched Hank Risk of Toledo to win an unanimous decision in the main event of a pro fight card here last night.

Flint's Eddie Garland was scheduled to go six rounds in his semifinal welterweight match with Danny Stepnovich of Pittsburgh but only lasted two minutes and eight seconds of the first round.

Stepnovich had Garland down twice before the Flint fighter could get in a decent blow. Garland was so groggy that the referee stopped the fight.

In the preliminaries, Middleweight Joe Lozano, a slugger from Detroit, provided a surprise when he belted his way to a TKO in two minutes and 10 seconds of the fourth round over Red Elby of Toledo, widely known as a Golden Glover before he turned pro.

Kayo Morgan, jr., of Detroit, a southpaw featherweight, knocked out Stormy Mondy of Inkster in two minutes of the first round.

Lightweight Stanley Kursa of Detroit won a unanimous decision in his four-rounder with Paul Davis of Buffalo, N. Y., and Buddy Carr of Toledo got the unanimous nod over Freddie Young of Detroit in a four-round light heavyweight match.

Pettit Good And Bad Against Pittsburgh

By the Associated Press

The exhibition baseball chatter today was mostly about a pitching performance by the $100,000 bonus baby, Pittsburgh Pirates' Paul Pettit, which could be called both good and bad.

Pettit, 18-year-old California lad shipped to New Orleans, hurled five hitless innings against minor league opposition recently.

Yesterday he was sent in to pitch against major leaguers — the boss Pirates.

Before the first inning was over he had given six runs on three walks, three singles, a double, a wild pitch and a balk, with a double steal sandwiched in.

But Paul in three more innings blanked the major leaguers. Pittsburgh won the game 10-7.

"Chips" Add Three New Grid Opponents

MT. PLEASANT—(AP)—A nine-game 1950 football schedule, including three new opponents, was announced today by Central Michigan college. Newcomers are De Pauw university, Western Illinois Normal and Illinois Normal university.

The schedule follows: Sept. 18, Alma at Mt. Pleasant; Sept. 23, At Western Illinois; Sept. 30, at Western Michigan; Oct. 7, Illinois Normal at Mt. Pleasant; Oct. 14, Bowling Green at Mt. Pleasant (homecoming); Oct. 21, at De-Pauw; Oct. 28, at Michigan Normal; Nov. 4, at Northern Illinois; Nov. 11, Ferris, at Mt. Pleasant.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)

New York (Sunnyside Garden)—Charley Salas, 151, Phoenix, knocked out Roy Carter, 151¼, New York, 1.

Fall River, Mass.—Jimmy Parlin, 127½, New York, outpointed Bobby English, 136, Fall River, 10.

Brooklyn (Broadway Arena)—Pat Marcune, 126½, New York, stopped Tony Pennino, 123½, New York, 4.

Worcester, Mass.—Timothy "Buddy" Hayes, 129½, Boston, outpointed Rudy Pasco, 127½, Paterson, N. J., 10.

Hal Holds Key To Tiger Hopes

MONTGOMERY, Ala. —(AP)— Hal Newhouser's doubtful condition has punctured the budding Detroit pennant boom.

Many experts, impressed by consistently smooth performances of Manager Red Rolfe's Tigers, were hopping the Tiger bandwagon until Prince Hal came up with a sore arm.

Now nobody knows which way to jump. X-rays showed nothing wrong with the arm. Newhouser isn't worried. He thinks he'll be all right with a little more rest.

Newhouser pitched only two innings during the Florida spring training season. When he warmed up to pitch batting practice March 8, he quit after a dozen tosses.

Both Rolfe and Newhouser are optimistic about his chances of getting some work enroute home usually Prince Hal has the opening day assignment. That is doubtful now.

Pitching is Rolfe's ace in the hole. His five-man starting staff of Virgil Trucks, Art Houtteman, Freddie Hutchinson, Ted Gray and Newhouser is second to none. There are no capable second line pitchers in case of injuries or early-inning disaster.

Hal White, back for another chance after a year in Toledo, may be the answer to Rolfe's search for a reliefer. White seems to have found control after all these years. Dizzy Trout and Paul Calvert, acquired from Washington, are other bullpen workmen. Calvert has been troubled by a sore arm.

Saul Rogovin, a 16-game winner at Buffalo, and Ray Herbert, 20-year-old Toledo grad, are others with possibilities.

The Tigers are improved, probably more than any other club in the American league. Addition of second baseman Jerry Priddy and first baseman Dick Kryhoski figure to help.

Priddy, purchased from St. Louis for $100,000 and pitcher Lou Kretlow, is the "take charge guy" Rolfe has been looking for. A smart .290 hitter with power and a fine fielder, Priddy should "make" the Tiger infield.

Kryhoski, used only against righthanded pitchers by the New York Yankees last year, still has to prove himself. He has been a Grapefruit league sensation although weak against southpaws. The Tigers gave up Dick Wakefield to get Kryhoski last winter. So far, the deal looks good from a Detroit viewpoint.

George Kell, league batting champ, is the standout third baseman in the league. Johnny Lipon at shortstop doesn't figure up to pennant caliber because of a poor arm and spotting hitting.

Next to the "big five" of the pitching staff, the outfield is Detroit's strongest point. Hoot Evers is left, Johnny Groth in center and Vic Wertz in right are hustling youngsters with good power and speed. This may turn out to be the best outfield in the league this summer.

Catching is only so-so, the Tigers' weakest spot. Aaron Robinson is the No. 1 man. Then comes Bob Swift. Myron (Joe) Ginsberg, a real comer, may have to go back to the minors because the Tigers have to keep Frank House, the $75,000 bonus boy.

Rolfe probably will carry three extra infielders—Don Kolloway for first base duty and Neil Berry and Eddie Lake.

Charley Keller suffered a tough break during the training season. He wrenched his back just when he was hitting his stride. Now he's just getting ready to go again. Until Rolfe knows how much he can expect from Keller he'll keep George Lerchen, a .298 hitter at Toledo. Pat Mullin also is sure of a job as an outfield replacement.

This is the best-looking Tiger club in years, including the 1945 champions. However, this is a better league than it was five years ago. If Newhouser is all right, the Tigers could win the pennant. To do it, they need all the breaks. Definitely, they rate as contenders along with the Yanks, Red Sox and Indians.

The Tigers Thursday victims, by a 7 to 5 margin, were the Atlanta Crackers at Atlanta. Today the Detroiters test their luck further against the Montgomery Barons here.

Against the Crackers Rolfe's team got started in a hurry, banging across five runs in the first inning. But only Kryhoski's eighth inning homer saved them from possible defeat.

The game was a sort of a Tiger reunion. The Crackers are managed by Dixie Walker, one-time Detroit outfielder. Their coach is Whit Wyatt, also a former Detroiter.

Line score:

Detroit (A) 500 000 020—7 9 1
Atlanta (SA) 000 400 010—5 8 1

Hutchinson, Calvert (6) and Ginsberg; Taylor, Henccheck (2) Albers (8), Fowler (9) and St. Claire.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our beloved father, John KALLMAN, who was taken from our family by death on April 7, 1949.

He little thought when leaving home,
He would return no more,
That he in death so soon would sleep,
And leave us here to mourn.
We do not know what pain he bore,
We did not see him die,
We only know he passed away
And could not say goodbye.

Sadly missed by

HIS FAMILY.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere appreciation and thanks to all the kind neighbors and friends who assisted us during our recent bereavement, the death of our beloved father, James P. Clark. We are very grateful to those who furnished cars, sent floral offerings, those who served as pallbearers, and to all others who aided us in so many ways. The memory of these acts of kindness will always remain with us.

Signed:
WILLIAM (RED) CLARK,
ALICE CLARK SCHRAM.

Clock, Cigarettes And Keys Stolen

The residence of Clyde McKenzie, 114 N. 24th street, was entered last night between seven and 8:45 o'clock and an ivory electric clock and two cartons of cigarettes were stolen, as well as a set of house keys.

The home was entered while the family was attending church services. The theft was discovered upon the return of the family at 8:45 o'clock.

Brooklyn Boy Falls 5 Stories To Death In Pigeon Quarrel

NEW YORK—(AP)—Two Brooklyn boys had been quarreling about some pet pigeons when a fight started.

It ended when 9-year-old Charles Haptman plunged five stories to his death from a rooftop.

Assistant District Attorney Aaron Silver said John Sorrano, 14, admitted hammering at Charles' hands with a 10-foot pole until the younger boy lost his grip on a fire escape and fell.

Silver gave this account:

Charles went to the roof of a tenement to play with some pigeons circling over a coop. John, who lives nearby, told Charles to leave the birds alone.

When Charles tried to catch a pigeon, John picked up the pole and chased Charles to the edge of the roof. Charles tried to get down the fire escape. When John hammered at his hands, Charles lost his hold on the fire escape and fell.

The older boy was held on a juvenile delinquency charge.

New Uses For State Fairgrounds Sought

LANSING—(AP)—Proposals for making the state fairgrounds in Detroit more useful on a year around basis went under the scrutiny of a governor's study committee Friday.

The committee, appointed weeks ago, met with Williams for the first time and got down to business.

Williams informed the group that the fairgrounds are possible sites for a proposed International Trade Fair in 1951 and Detroit's celebration of its 250th anniversary.

However, either project would require the building facilities at the fairgrounds to be virtually doubled. In addition to the question of financing such an expansion, Williams said, there are problems of how the grounds should be administered and how it would conflict with the state fair itself.

Tramp, 70, Prevents Train Wreck Gets New Suit And $100

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif.—(AP)—Somewhere, the Sant Fe railroad thinks, John McGowan, one-eyed and 70, is trudging along the tracks, probably wearing a new suit.

Here's the story it told:

Recently McGowan, a transient, was walking along the tracks when his good eye spotted a broken rail. At almost the same moment, he heard an approaching train.

Running down the track, McGowan frantically waved a warning. Inches from the break, the train ground to a halt.

Grateful railroad officials brought McGowan here. They dined him, and got him a room at the best hotel. They bought him a new suit, and slipped $100 into a pocket.

Next day they dropped by, to see if there was anything else McGowan needed. But he was gone, presumably back to the main line.

Blonde Nurse Admits She's Cattle Rustler At Oakland, Calif.

OAKLAND, Calif.—(AP)—A blonde nurse, 23, charged with cattle rustling, readily showed a skeptical deputy sheriff how she could handle the four-footed critters.

Mrs. Firth Band grasped Deputy Stanley Peterson around the waist, he related, "boosted me three feet in the air, and said 'like this'."

Peterson weighs 185 pounds.

Mrs. Band and three 17-year-old boys were charged with grand theft of five calves and four cows. The calves were found in a slaughterhouse, which bought them for $135. Owners said they were worth $535.

Mrs. Band, a nicely proportioned 5 feet 10, said she learned to like cattle and horses in Wyoming.

Forrestal Bust Has Been Ordered

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The son of the late Kyosti Kallio, president of Finland from 1937 to 1940, has won a commission to execute a bronze bust of the late James Forrestal, first secretary of defense.

The sculptor, Kalervo Kallio, won by submitting a plaster model in an open competition. His bust was the unanimous choice of the award committee. The Forrestal Memorial Committee, of which Defense Secretary Johnson is chairman, will pay $5,000 for the bust. It will be erected at one of the entrances to the Pentagon.

MAIL AND FEMALE—Pretty Lynn Carroll of Chicago, a front runner in the race for the title "Miss Stardust of 1950," stands beside a mailbox to show other pretty girls how to get into the contest. All you do, cuties, is: mail a photo of yourself, giving height, bust, hip and waist measurements, to Post Office Box 65, Murray Hill Station, N. Y., before May 1st. The winner gets $500 in cash, a trip to New York and a three-year contract as a model.

Death Claims Veteran Actor Walter Huston

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Walter Huston, one of the nation's most eminent stage and screen actors, died today.

He was stricken at his hotel suite late yesterday, just before a surprise 66th birthday party planned for him by his son, Director John Huston, and others at Romanoff's cafe.

WALTER HUSTON

He was unable to go to the party but celebrated his birthday at the hotel in Beverly Hills with Spencer Tracy, John Huston and other friends.

Huston's physician, Dr. Verne Mason, said the ailment apparently was kidney trouble or a blood clot. Huston rested easily during the night but complained of pain about 6 a. m. today and died shortly after 8 a. m.

Broadway Producer Jed Harris and Huston's manager, Paul Kohner, were among the friends who stayed with the actor at the hotel.

Huston returned from New York only a few days ago, intending to start a new picture Monday, a humorous story of a forger's career called "Old 880."

Raccoon Big Nuisance Animal In Michigan

LANSING—(AP)—The raccoon was the chief nuisance animal last year on the basis of predator damage complaints investigated, the state conservation department said.

It was the first time since 1944 that the red fox was not listed as the number one nuisance.

Of the 512 damage complaints investigated in 1949, the raccoon was responsible in 262 cases, or more than 52 per cent of the total reported. The red fox was responsible in 120 cases or 23 per cent of the total.

Other animals complained about, all representing less than five per cent of the total each, were dog, badger, skunk and bear. Although officers received many bear damage complaints they reported most of them were unwarranted.

Poor Conditions Cut Down Beaver Harvest

LANSING—(AP)—Poor trapping conditions, a smaller crop of animals and low fur prices reduced the lower Peninsula beaver harvest to 1,327 pelts this season, the state conservation department reported.

Otter pelts totaled 119 for the season ending March 31. In the same 12-day season last year, trappers bagged 4,126 beaver and 157 otter.

First reports for the Upper Peninsula beaver season, which closes April 9, were not encouraging. Trappers said that impassable back roads restricted their range.

Food Store Fined For Overloading

The Krambo Food Store, Appleton, was fined $30 and costs in justice court yesterday for driving an overloaded truck on US-2 while load restrictions were in effect. R. R. Olson, of Bessemer, weighmaster, reported that the truck was overloaded six tons. It was carrying potatoes.

The company was forced to transfer the overload to another truck.

Eureka Mine Near Bessemer Changes Hands Next Fall

BESSEMER—The Castile Mining Co., subsidiary of Ogleby, Norton & Co., has transferred its lease on the Eureka mine property at Ramsay to the Youngstown Mines Corp., according to Frank J. Smith, general superintendent of Ogleby, Norton on the range.

The Castile Mining Co., will complete its mining activities at the Eureka, during the latter part of this year, probably in September, said Supt. Smith.

The new lease holder will take over the shaft and other mining facilities. No decision has been made as yet on the disposition of other buildings owned by the Castile company. The company has a large number of dwellings at Ramsay.

The Eureka mine is reported to be the deepest underground iron ore mine in the world, having a depth of approximately 3,500 feet.

It is understood that the lower part of the Anvil ore body will be mined from the Eureka shaft and that a drift is now being driven from the Eureka to reach the ore.

Fish Breeder Uses Planes To Market

TAMPA, Fla.—(AP)—Fish breeder Herbert Woolf has built up a big tropical fish business in the north by using milk delivery methods. He loads a big plane with 30,000 little fish twice weekly. His pilots drop off cans of fish at airports along the route and picks up containers left before. The Woolf plane goes once a weeek to the larger cities in the East and delivers fish to the Mid West on another run.

Woolf has a 40-acre fish farm with 300 outdoor breeding pools. Such little fellows as guppies, swordtails, wagtails are raised in the pools. Temperatures and feeding conditions are checked as carefully as they are at a hospital nursery. The fish are loaded into cans equipped with hundreds of rubber tubes through which air is pumped. Losses are neglibible.

Wholesale tropical fish dealers are the largest purchasers of the air-shipped fish. The fish are resold to acquariums and retail dealers.

HAS GARAGE SERVICE

NEW YORK— (AP) —Motorists going abroad may now drive their cars aboard an ocean liner, park them in a garage and drive ashore on the other side of the Atlantic. The garage on the motor liner Batory of the Gdynia American Line is reached by a special ramp from the dock. The usual practice in shipping cars abroad is to lift them with a derrick.

Legal Tangles Bar Vote For 18-Year-Olds

LANSING — (AP) — Governor Williams' hopes to put the question of allowing 18-year-olds to vote on the November ballot hit a heavy legal snag today.

The obstacle was sighted by Henry Oakley, director of the secretary of state's elections division.

This was what he discovered:

The 1949 legislature placed on the next November ballot a proposal to amend the constitution to require 30 days of residence before a citizen may register to vote, instead of the present 20 days. That is the section which fixes the voting age now at 21 years.

Williams' proposed constitutional amendment would apply to the same section of the constitution.

Thus, if the legislature were to order Williams' resolution placed on the ballot, an insoluble conflict would be created.

Oakley said that adoption of the 1949 amendment would keep the age limit at 21 and adoption of the Williams amendment would fix it at 18. Since both would be passed at the same election, no one would know which was in effect.

Chinese Reds Drop Bond-Buying Demand On American Firms

HONG KONG,— (AP) —Chinese Communist authorities appeared today to have backed down from demands that 10 American, British and French firms buy about $400,000 worth of Red "victory" bonds.

Recent reports had said these firms would be closed and their managers arrested if they did not fill their quotas. Hong Kong headquarters of the firms, however, were reported to have politely but firmly told the Reds their Canton offices could sustain no such load in addition to already heavy Red taxation.

The latest report is that the Communist foreign affairs section told the firms it had taken jurisdiction from the tax and bond sales commission which had no authority to deal with foreigners.

This looked like a face-saving gesture which probably will lead to dropping the whole matter.

Firms concerned include Cal-Tex, Shell and Standard-Vacuum Oil companies, British-American Tobacco, Jardine, Matheson & Co., Butterfield & Swire, Hong Kong & Shanghai Bank, Banque de L'Indochine, Deacon Co., and Imperial Chemical.

Housewife Acquitted Of Killing Parents At Princeton, Ind.

PRINCETON, Ind. — (AP)—Mrs. Clarice Spurlock is free today of charges she killed her father and mother with poison.

The 28-year-old Evansville housewife was acquitted of first degree murder in the death of her father, Winter Dearing of Huntingburg, Ind. A second charge then was dismissed for insufficient evidence on motion of the prosecution.

A 12-man jury deliberated only 35 minutes before returning a verdict.

The defense contended there was no evidence Mrs. Spurlock ever possessed any arsenic, the poison which killed her parents.

Dearing died in an Evansville hospital last spring after visiting his daughter. Mrs. Dearing died in the fall of 1948 under similar circumstances.

Senate Gets 156 Flood And Waterway Projects

By CARL THOMPSON
(The Wall Street Journal)

WASHINGTON — (AP) — About 80 miles southeast of here, where the Potomac flows into Chesapeake Bay, lies Smith Island, Md., population 1,020. The sea-food gathering residents of this marshy island go boating through $210,433 of channels and canals dug by the Federal Government in Twitch Cove, Big Thoroughfare River and Levering Creek. The Senate is now considering another $21,000 project for the Smith Islanders.

Just up St. Marys River, flowing into the Atlantic on the Georgia-Florida border, there's a good-sized paper mill—St. Marys Kraft Corp. If the Federal Government spends a proposed $918,600 to improve navigation on this river, the paper mill would save some $135,000 a year in transportation costs. It would cost the U. S. another $18,000 a year for channel maintenance. The Senate Public Works Committee thinks this is a worthy project.

These are just two of 156 "pork barrel" projects the Senate is now being asked to approve in an omnibus rivers and harbors and flood control bill. Many of these projects already have an okay from the House.

How The Projects Start

In simplified form, here's how such projects get on the Federal Government's spending list:

Businessmen, politicians or ordinary townsfolk in some locality decide they want a river dredged or a reservoir built. Congressmen are urged to have the matter studied. So Congress authorizes the Corps of Enginers to look into it and make a report on its feasibility. The Engineers submit their findings to Congress and the lawmakers authorize—or reject—the program.

But even when a project is authorized, it can't get under way until Congress actually approves the funds to start it. So the Engineers, from year to year, go to Congress for appropriations to get authorized projects started or keep them going.

This constant agitation led the House Appropriations Committee this year to deplore the "tendency of the Corps of Enginers to request funds for the initiation and simultaneous construction of too many projects."

evertheless, the House money-providing group has approved $600 million for existing public works projects in 1950-51, nearly three times the amount appropriated four and five years ago.

Sometimes the engineers are a little hardput to explain the "benefits" of these projects.

On Michigan's upper peninsula, for instance, some 125 fishermen and their families live around Grand Marais Harbor on Lake Superior, about 20 miles from their nearest neighbors. They have two 3,000-foot piers, a 6,000-foot dike and a dredged harbor channel, built with $355,885 in federal funds and maintained over the years with another $467,552. Congress is now being asked to spend another $398,000 for them. The annual costs will run $18,000. The yearly "benefits" to the professional fishermen and to summer tourists who come for sports fishing can't be stretched over $10,000. That's $8,000 a year less than the yearly cost to Uncle Sam.

Help For Fly Creek

A $14,000 dredging job on Fly Creek, near Fairhope, Ala., would permit "15 recreational craft" to use the creek and would "to a large extent" eliminate some damages to the 45 craft that now harbor in the creek. It would cost an added $2,000 a year to maintain the project. The chief beneficiaries: 60 boat owners.

A $1,356,000 project proposed for the Detroit River in Michigan is justified on the basis of saving the Detroit Edison Co., $94,000 a year in transporting coal to a power generating plant. This saving, the Engineers assure Congress, would be "reflected in the rates paid by the general public" for electricity. It is noted, but not emphasized, that $54,000 of this saving would result from diverting coal shipments from railroads to water.

Then there's a proposal that the U. S. take over the $46,000-a-year job of maintaining a silt catch basin on the James River. The result: A saving of $46,000 for the city of Richmond, Va.

Tax Boost Asked On Employers To Pay For Jobless

dent on the need for such legislature.

But the men who must handle the bill if it gets anywhere were non-committal.

Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the House Ways and Means committee said "we've got our hands full trying to write a tax bill. I don't suppose anybody wants us to drop the tax bill now and take up something else."

Chairman George (D-Ga) of the Senate Finance committee and Senate Democratic leader Lucas, of Illinois, told newsmen they were unable to say what would be done about the jobless pay proposal.

The Senate finance group now is considering a social security expansion measure passed by the House last year. This would blanket 11,000,000 more workers under the old age insurance system, increase benefits for the aged, add a new disability insurance and increase payroll taxes to carry the new load.

Deer Hunting Sales To Beat 1948 High

LANSING—(AP) — Reports on sales totals of resident deer hunting licenses in 1949 are edging up and should soon pass the 1948 record high, the state department reports.

The latest tabulation shows 371,822 resident deer hunters compared to the 1948 high of 373,146. Scattered final reports are expected to bolster the total to exceed the old mark.

Incomplete returns already show a record 815,577 resident fishermen bought licenses last year. Other records include a new high of 179,946 trout stamps sold, 126,463 non-resident fishing licenses, 11,026 resident bow and arrow hunters and 3,927 non-resident small game hunters.

The revenue from total license sales recorded through March 31 reached $5,059,515. The final revenue tally for 1948 was $4,985,711.

Kaiser Cuts Price On New 1951 Autos

DETROIT—Kaiser-Frazer Corp. has announced a price reduction on the first of its new 1951 model cars.

The new Frazer, luxury model of the three K-F lines, will have a factory delivered price of $2,359. This compares with a $2,395 price on the 1950 Frazers.

At the same time K-F announced the new Frazer "Vagabond", an entirely new model in the Frazer line, will deliver at the factory for $2,399.

Deliveries to dealers already have begun on the Frazer models. During the latter part of next month the new Kaiser models will start moving to dealers. Prices on these models have not yet been disclosed, although they will be substantially lower than those for the Frazers.

Also still to be announced is the price tag for K-F's new smaller model. It is scheduled to go into production in June.

Economy Jams Beaver Island Easter Finery

BEAVER ISLAND, Mich.—(AP)—Government economy means no Easter finery for many residents of this island in northern lake Michigan.

It's a matter of postal deliveries. Through the winter months, when the mail boat can't travel from the Michigan mainland to Beaver Island, all letters and packages must be delivered by airplane.

Recently, though, postal authorities at Charlevoix looked over the regulations and decided Beaver Island's population of 300 entitles the residents to only three deliveries of 500 pounds each for any one week.

So more than a ton of packages —many of them containing new spring clothing—has piled up in the Charlevoix post office. Beaver Islanders will get it 500 pounds at a time until the mail boat can get through again.

Friendly Indians brought a deerskin bag of popcorn to the first Thanksgiving feast of the Pilgrims in North America.
